THE REV. DR. GRINTON MAKES ANNUAL REPORT TO CONFERENCE

Despite Difficulties Attendant on Rigorous Winter Methodist Episcopal Work in This District Has Been Well Carried On—Three Retired Clergymen Died.

Following is the annual report of The Rev. Dr. G. W. Grinton, Superintendent of the Kingston District, read the Thursday morning session of the New York Conference held in the Park Avenue M. E. Church, New York city:

During the winter months The Kingston Freeman predicted almost daily in its weather report, snow today and colder tomorrow. This was a true prophecy and an unexaggerated statement of the conditions in the high altitudes of the Catskill Mountains, where the huge drifts and snow-blocked roads, coupled with zero weather made church attendance almost impossible. Moreover, the scarcity of fuel was another serious handicap. In fact it was unspeakably difficult to secure coal in some sections and even wood was at a premium. Now that the rigors of winter have disappeared and spring has come, in true Apostolic spirit, we forget the things that are behind and press forward, singing with James Whitcomb Riley: "Just Be Glad."

"O heart of mine, we shouldn't worry so,
What we've missed of calm we couldn't have you know.
What we've met of stormy pain, and of sorrows driving rain,
We can better meet again, it it blow,
For we know, not every morrow can be sad,
So forgetting all the sore we have had,
Let us fold away our fears,
And put by our foolish tears,
And through all the coming years,
Just be glad."

There has been no break in the ranks of our effective preachers this year. But three of our honored retired brethren will fail to respond at their names are called at this session. They have answered the eternal roll call.

L. A. Robbins, modest, gentle, lovable; R. M. Roberts, plain, practical, business like, and Barry Cornford, earnest, loyal and devoted, all died in the triumphs of a living faith and have entered into the eternal sunlight.

In the latter part of June Mrs. E. N. Hubbard, the estimable wife of our pastor at Coxsackie, entered into [illegible] of several weeks.

The district has been sorely bereft by the death of two of its trustees: J. Masterstock, of Kingston, and C. W. Mackey of Coxsackie.

Several of our brethren in the retired relation are in feeble health: J. L. Dean, [illegible] N. H. Haynes, [illegible] and A. F. Lord have been [illegible] suffering and pain. The marvel of them all is A. F. Lord, who has been practically helpless for two years. On a recent Sunday afternoon, through the kindness of his pastor, he was able to hear the address of the Rev. Dr. S. P. Cadman, which was broadcasted from the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. When the speaker graciously announced that the Rev. A. F. Lord, of Kingston, an invalid for two years was listening in, he suggested a hearty rousing applause for Brother Lord in recognition of their appreciation of his patient suffering. That great audience of men and women raised the roof, and the reciprocation of this spontaneous expression of sympathy and good will was quite overcome by their kindness.

"Have you had a kindness shown?
Pass it on.
'Twas not given for you alone,
Pass it on. Let it travel down the years;
Let it wipe another's tears,
Till in heaven the deed appears.
Pass it on."

Since the Christmas holidays, G. W. Englert of Rensselaville, has been laid aside with a muscular pain. He therefore requests that he be granted his retirement.

T. B. Moon, after forty-two years of careful, painstaking and faithful [illegible] ministry, asks to be placed on the retired list.

L. A. Platt, of Greenville, has been able to do very little work for the last two months, and will ask for retirement hoping that after a year's rest he may be able to resume active work.

Since January 1st, the following changes in appointments have been made: B. M. Hamilton to Middletown; C. Coddington to Sangerfield; W. L. Cornelison to Stamford; and John Arthur who will supply Ravena until conference.

G. F. Wells has become associated with the Eastern division of the Board of Sunday Schools, and L. R. Long, well and favorably known among us, has been supplying the Pine Hill charge. Brother Long is serving his fifth year in the Assembly as representative of Delaware county, and the conference has every reason to be proud of his record.

The Methodist preachers can always be depended upon to uphold the forces of evil, whether they are entrenched in the open saloon or hidden away in barber shops, grocery stores, or soft-drink emporiums. Our Fathers fought to preserve the Union; we fight for law enforcement and to uphold the Constitution.

Considerable improvement is manifested in the conduct of the business affairs of the church. The old haphazard, slipshod method of sending the minister the dollars, to apply on his salary, or of furnishing him with produce he did not "order" and charging it to his account, have given place to the budget system and every member canvass. Pastors' salaries have increased this year $2,909.

The Rifton church, taken over from the Newburgh district three years ago, manifests a slight improvement, but it still has a mortgage of many years standing amounting to about $1,300. The parsonage is rented thereby providing for the interest on the mortgage. The house is in need of considerable outlay for repairs probably $500, to make it habitable. The trustees, in the following resolution, asks permission to sell this parsonage and by the proceeds, cancel the mortgage on the church:

"Whereas the parsonage at Rifton is sadly in need of repairs and, whereas said parsonage is rented and the rental used for payment of the interest on an $1800 mortgage held against the church, therefore be it

"Resolved, that the local trustees be empowered to sell the parsonage and devote the proceeds to the payment of the mortgage. The remainder of the principal, if any, to be held in trust by the trustees of the conference and the interest therefrom to be used for said church."

The church at Franklinton, on the old Livingstonville charge, has long since outlived its usefulness. The beautiful Protestant Church, immediately across the street, is abundantly able to care for the spiritual interests of the village. I therefore recommend that the following resolution receive the sanction of the session of the conference:

"Whereas, our church at Franklinton, on the old Livingstonville charge, has been abandoned for several years, and

"Whereas, the church is held in trust by the local trustees for the New York Conference, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the quarterly conference be authorized to appoint a committee to dispose of the property, the proceeds to be held in trust by the New York Conference trustees, the interest therefrom to be used yearly for the support of the Livingstonville Church."

The merger between the Presbyterian Church and our own church at Jefferson, under construction for over four years, has finally been approved by the Otsego Presbytery. The Presbyterian property, consisting of church and manse, representing a valuation of $5,000, has been deeded to the New York Conference without conditions or restrictions. It was the latter clause which has held the final adjustment for so long a time. Forty-one Presbyterians have joined our church and to quote one of their oldest and most respected members: have become whole-hearted Methodists. Application will be made to this body to sell the Presbyterian manse and use the proceeds in making alterations in one of the buildings for community work.

At Franklin, a new Sunday school room has been built and the church redecorated at a cost of $10,000. Of this amount $6,000 has been provided for.

Malden has erected a community hall at a cost of $2,700.

Dormansville has built a new church hall at a cost of $2,000.

Coeymans points with pride to their new organ costing $1,025.

Hensonville has bought the lot adjoining its church property and made other improvements involving an outlay of $1,500. It will be impossible to go further into detail. Suffice it to say that electric lighting systems and new heating plants have been installed in many places; churches have been painted and redecorated; old parsonages modernized, church sheds [illegible] barrels used for storage purposes have been torn down, or converted into garages, with reserve space for teams, and other reasonable improvements made which evidenced both attractiveness and efficiency.

The following expenditures are recorded: Andes, $700; Arkville, $200; Arena, $490; Ashland, $450; Athens, $125; Bienheim, [illegible]; Bloomville, $285; Cairo, [illegible]; Catskill, $700; Coeymans Hollow, $775; Cornwallville, $75; Coxsackie, $300; Deldi, $400; Preischmanns, $720; Glasco, $325; Grand Gorge, $541; Greenville, [illegible]; Haines Falls, $800; Harpersfield, $677; Hobart, $1,360; [illegible]; $225; Jefferson, $525; Kingston: St. James's, $1,300; Trinity, $1,-; $80; Clinton Avenue, $1,000, Kingston Hill, $300; Lexington, $125; Margaretville, $200; Mahorkill, $60; New Baltimore, $465; Oak Hill, $250; Olive Bridge, $200; Palenville, $20; Pine Hill, $200; Port Ewen, $800; Prattsville, $750; Phoenicia, $652; Ravena, $850; Round Top, $870; Roxbury, $420; Saugerties, $500; South Bethlehem, $500; South Rondout, $200; Summit, $600; Tannersville, $500; Treadwell, $275; Union, $500; Walton, $150; Windham, $400; Woodstock, $550. These figures are given because they represent hard work and enterprise.

Without the self-sacrificing labors of the various Ladies' Aid Societies in the local churches, many of these enterprises would have failed in being consummated. All

FAIR GROUNDS ASS'N FINDS IT CANNOT PUT UP NEW BUILDING ALONE

Is Willing To Assume Large Share of Financing But Decides Not to Go Ahead Until Chamber of Commerce or Other Cooperation is Assured.

After careful consideration of the plans and estimates for the erection of the proposed exposition building on the Fair Grounds, the directors of the Kingston Fair Grounds Association have decided that the financing of the project is too great a responsibility for them to assume unaided. Should co-operation be shown by the Chamber of Commerce or any other organization or association to give the necessary cooperation, the directors are ready and willing to assume their share in the work, but until some definite and tangible offer of adequate assistance is made, the matter will be held in abeyance.

The exposition building planned would have been the largest between New York and Albany and would cost, complete and equipped, about $115,000. Stockholders in the Fair Grounds Association have consented to the issue of mortgage bonds and the sale of additional stock sufficient to raise this sum, but nothing further will be done unless the proper support is given to a campaign to sell these securities.

TROUT SEASON OPENS TOMORROW

In the show window of Warren's sporting goods store on Fair street, is a gentle reminder that the trout season opens Saturday. Although there is still a great deal of snow in the mountains, many fishermen are planning to be ready on the opening day to try their luck. In the window at Warren's an artistic trout stream is pictured, bordered with very daring rocks and rut, such as members of the speckled tribe usually inhabit. The stream which has been very cleverly designed, winds between miniature hills upon which small trees and green shrubs have been placed. Then around this stream on the remainder of the window space are displayed a variety of flies, lines, rods and other necessities of the fisherman. The layout of the exhibit and the work has been very cleverly executed and attracts a great deal of attention and comment.

Girl Drowns in Falkill.

Betty McCoy, two years old, daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Patrick F. McCoy of Poughkeepsie, was drowned in the Falkill on Wednesday afternoon. Just how the child fell into the creek is still a mystery. Mrs. McCoy missed the child shortly after two o'clock in the afternoon and started in search of her. In the course of the search she heard that a child had been drowned in the Falkill and she at once went to the undertaking establishment of Denton C. Anderson where the body was and identified the child.

Dance Saturday.

There will be a dance at the White Eagle Hall on Delaware avenue Saturday evening. Palle's orchestra will furnish the music.

D. A. R. CHAPTER APRIL MEETING

There was but little business transacted at the April meeting of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R. held on Thursday afternoon at the Chapter House. But the report of the recent card party was given, the net proceeds being $40. Mrs. Hyman Roosa had just returned from her winter spent in the south, and going directly from the train to the Chapter House gave a very interesting and interesting sketch of various D. A. R. work which she encountered in the south.

The musical program for the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. G. N. Wood who presented Mrs. Louis Coe, pianist. Mrs. Coe delighted her hearers with two piano selections: La Truite by Schubert; and Dedication by Robert Franz.

The historic part of the program was in charge of Mrs. W. E. Simmons and Mrs. Lorraine Wood who had responded upon Mrs. Theodore de la Porte, regent of the Rheinbeck D. O. R., to give a valuable, interesting and entertaining paper on "Historic Trails and Old Tombstones."

The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. William C. Kingman and Mrs. Harold Keator.

Chapman, Wounded Mail Robber, Is Found and Again Escapes

Nurse Gets Hysterical When She Sees Him in Hospital Basement and in Confusion He Walks Out—Is Too Weak to go Far.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Athens, Ga., April 6. Gerald Chapman, leader of a million-dollar New York mail robbery and the man who would not stay captured, staggered to freedom again early today from the hospital basement room where he had sought shelter when he escaped from his guarded room in the hospital Wednesday night.

He was discovered in the basement by Miss Scott a night nurse, who brought Deputy Warden H. M. Bishop to the room. Another nurse who joined them became hysterical at the sight of the desperado, pale with fever and almost unconscious from the wound he suffered in his first break from the Atlanta federal penitentiary. While Bishop was quieting the hysterical nurse, confident that Chapman was too weak to make further trouble, the convict walked out of the hospital and disappeared.

FIRST CHAMBER MUSIC RECITAL

McClure Gives Finished Rendition at Knauth Home and Audience Proves Very Responsive.

The charming home of Mrs. Antonio Knauth on Albany avenue was the scene this morning, of a noteworthy musical and social event when the McClure Trio, composed of two Kingston musicians, Mrs. Cubberly, violinist and Mr. Mollott, 'cellist, and the new organist of St. John's Church, Mr. McClure, gave the first of a series of three Chamber Music Recitals.

The beautiful and most artistically played program was greatly enhanced by the equally artistic setting of the home where music has been for many years an integral part of the home life, as during the lifetime of Mr. Knauth, weekly string quartet recitals, in which the master of the house was one of the musicians, took place for some twenty five years. Many spring flowers added their greetings to those which the hostess extended to the guests of the morning.

The program opened with a "Trio," a miniature symphony composed for a miniature orchestra by Cade. From the very first movement - Allegro animato there was a joyousness, an exhilaration about the trio, which only such music can give, and it was at once evident that the musicians were truly "congenial spirits." It was hard to believe that they had been playing together weeks instead of years. The beauty of the composition and the splendid musicianship of the players held the audience spellbound through the happy "Allegro animato" then the still more vivid "Allegro molto vivace" followed by the lovely "Andantino" which swept on into the brilliant, enthusiastic "Allegro con fuoco." The audience was most enthusiastic in its reception of the entire trio leaving no room to refrain their generous applause of each movement.

With rich, full tone, depth of feeling and warmth of coloring, Mrs. Cubberly played the cello [illegible] by Sinding, most appealingly, her violin seeming to love to sing its almost spiritualized song of adoration. The sonorous violin tones were marked by a peculiarly bell-like quality. It stirred the hearts of her hearers.

Quite different was the dainty [illegible] by Couperin Kreisler played with rare grace and delicacy and a touch of whimsey by Mr. Cubberly, who was so sympathetically, and with such consummate skill, accompanied by Mr. McClure, the leader and conductor of the trio.

The all-too-short program closed with a group of trio numbers incomparable with a group of Sousa's. They showed the versatility of the artists.

First there was "By the Brook" by Boisdeffre, a rippling dancing [illegible] of music, making one [illegible] morning seem real indeed.

The second number in the group, "Andra's Dance," by Grieg, has a charm of its own, tripping and gay with here and there just a touch emphasizing [illegible].

The third, "Andante Cantabile Op. 2," by Tschaikowsky, was in marked contrast to the first two numbers. It is a beautiful song, for the violin, full of dignity, richly interwoven with minor strains in the cello and accompanying piano.

The delighted audience was dismissed with a brilliant sparkling number, crisp and vivid, Napolitana, by Sinding, in which one felt the gay colors of some rich Roman scarf, tossed and caught to the waist of [illegible] so like that of a Tarantella.

Every number of the group received heartiest and most appreciative applause, and all present voiced their delight that Kingston has such a musical organization, which affords such music at Mrs. Knauth's welcoming home.

C. Baldwin Allen and Pearl O. Anderson acted as ushers at the recital which will be followed by a second one on April 20th, at Mrs. Knauth's home at which [illegible] an equally delightful program will be given. Single tickets for the other two recitals may be secured from Mrs. C. N. Wood.

FOURTH DEGREE K. OF C. PROVED GOOD HOSTS

Thursday evening at the K. of C. Home, the third [illegible] members of Kingston Council [illegible] Knights of Columbus were [illegible] guests of the [illegible] Council of Poughkeepsie. The [illegible] number of the [illegible] which were greatly enjoyed. PROSPERITY HERE FOR THE WOMEN

Or Else They Are Finding Much to Do at Home—Factories Competing for Female Help.

Married life may have its disadvantages but evidently a good many girls in this city are either trying it out or expecting to do so if the shortage of female labor here can be used as an index. Inquiry at the large manufacturing establishments employing girls at the present time seems to bear out the fact that the shortage of women labor has really reached an acute stage.

There are quite a number of manufacturers in the city of Kingston who are daily engaged in a sort of informal competition to secure female help if the number of manufacturers advertising in the want ads of the newspapers can be taken proof along with the personal statement of the manufacturers themselves.

Not only are the manufacturers hit by this shortage but also the householders. Servants in large homes are demanding and getting high wages and the smaller home owner cannot compete with the wages paid for good domestics.

As for male labor in the manufacturing establishments is concerned there is plenty of it and the employers find no difficulty whatsoever in obtaining men or boys. In fact they are coming around asking for work. The girls however are very independent. If a girl becomes at all displeased with conditions in the factory where she is employed she immediately "up and quits." The next morning she takes her pick of the numerous other places which are advertising for help and immediately obtains new employment.

This condition not only exists in Kingston but also in all the other cities in this locality.

Trouble Enough.

A delegation had called on Jones to get him to serve on the house committee of the country club. "Gentlemen, I thank you for the honor from the bottom of my heart, but there is nothing doing. I already have a wife, a son-in-law, and a second-hand car, and I think that is trouble enough for one man."

Goose Is Real Patriarch.

Of our common animals the span of life of the rabbit is about seven years; while the hare averages a little longer. The squirrel does not live more than seven years. Dogs and cats seldom survive beyond fifteen, but the pig will reach thirty. The goose is the patriarch of the farmyard, for one has been known to live sixty years.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, April 5.—George Eyett is ill at his home on Maple avenue.

Queen Esther people met at the home of Mrs. Herbert Schoefield Wednesday evening. Good attendance and fine social after the business. The usual good refreshments.

Mrs. F. A. Coons and son Sheldon left here Thursday for New Jersey, and after a short visit with friends, will go to Yonkers to visit the Rev. Mr. Coons, brother and family, and then join her husband at conference.

Mrs. E. Hotchkins and daughter have returned from a visit at Peekskill with Mr. and Mrs. Kelsey Staples.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rowley entertained guests from Newburgh last Sunday at the home on Maple avenue.

Hose Company held their meeting Tuesday evening in their new quarters.

Friday, April 13, Auxiliary Club will hold forth at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Whitley. The March meeting had to be postponed on account of so much sickness and terrible conditions of the roads so the club feels that by the 13th everything will be in good condition to have a big crowd. Hostesses for the afternoon are Mrs. J. P. Whitley, Mrs. John Madlin and Mrs. William Maynard.

Friday, J. W. Feeter, F. L. Metcalf and R. H. Decker, three of the officials in M. E. Church, went to New York and attended conference.

Mrs. Louis Martin was in Middletown last week.

Dr. and Mrs. F. Welker of New York city with friends were up here at their home on Grand street for Easter vacation.

Charles Bickert of Danbury, Conn., spent Easter here at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wilcox.

Susie Lent of Richmond Hill has been spending Easter time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Lent on Grand street.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Madlin of White street have had as their recent guest, their son Jack, who attends Cornell College.

Miss Doretta Gedney has been on a visit in Ann Arbor, Mich. Her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. F. Bradshaw, reside there. She reports a fine time.

E. B. Harrington, who was hurt recently, glad to report, is gaining nicely. His many friends hope soon to see him out again.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Goldt of White street have had guests from Woodhaven, Long Island recently.

Miss Belle Brinckerhoff, who has been very ill, is now so she can go out.

Miss Fannie Kurtz has been out of town for an Easter visit of a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Metcalf were host and hostess to the official board of the M. E. Church Monday evening. There was a large delegation present and plenty of business. Everything along the finance line is properous. During the social hour, delicious refreshments were served and all gave evidence again of the Metcalf hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Elting have returned from a visit with friends in the Metropolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rose returned Monday from a delightful trip to California. They had one of the best times known and the climate and everything there was simply grand.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schamerhorn, daughter and son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wilcox, gave a party on Thursday evening, 29th, at their home in honor of the 47th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox. There were several guests and a 6 o'clock dinner was served. They received many beautiful flowers as gifts and everyone had a delightful time at the party.

Mrs. Amelia Elmendorf and Ruby Cornell have been spending a week in Coxsackie with relatives.

Easter Sunday was observed in M. E. Church with exercises in the morning by children, whom all love to hear, fine discourse by the pastor, the Rev. F. A. Coons, also interesting talk by J. W. Feeter in regard to the pastor's good work for the past five years and high esteem in which he is held by the people throughout the community. These are things which are lasting and are of great importance and interest. All hope for the return of the family for M. E. Church for the sixth year.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Seaman will occupy the home formerly known as the Reed Ritchie place and Mr. and Mrs. James Swift expect to move back in their house on Church street.

The Rev. and Mrs. Foster A. Coons, Mrs. Herbert Seaman and daughter were shoppers in Poughkeepsie last week preparing for Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Ferris and Miss Julia have all been in for some time with colds. We are glad to report they are all better at present, able to be around.

Attendance at M. E. Sunday school on Easter was very large. There is much interest manifested. The men's Bible class is increasing in members and interest every Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wood have moved from the Stanton place to the Hudson farm, Vineyard avenue.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. J. W. Feeter Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. F. L. Metcalf had charge of the program. All was very interesting. At the close refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ibscher and son were in Kingston last Sunday.

The Aldrich property on Washington avenue has been sold to a party from Poughkeepsie.

Cement Plants Raise Wages.

The men employed at the Alpha Portland Cement plant, Cementon, have received a raise of five cents an hour. The Acme Cement plant, also of the above place, has also raised the wages paid their men.

Get Prime, Tender Meats —AT— Lay's Saturday Sale

121-123 Hasbrouck Avenue

Our Pork, Beef, Lamb and Veal are choice enough to make you feel contented after every meal; but there is something better in market-keeping than the selling of great quantities of meats. To sell the "BEST QUALITY" that can be bought for the price paid is the goal at which we have been driving. If we can do that well enough we are satisfied to let the public determine the quantity of meats we shall sell. Two other points we follow are "PRICE" and "SERVICE." We want you to convince yourself Saturday that these principles prevail at this market.

FOR SUMMER WEAR

Ratine Popular in Solid Colors With Large Figures.

Cotton Crepes Available in Many Weaves and Weights in Wonderful Range of Shades.

If you would choose your summer frocks early this is the way the wind of fashion blows.

Ratine is the fabric is the word that goes forth in regard to the frocks of spring that is, of course, in the way of cotton fabrics. Ratine was immensely popular last year, but it scarce dreamed how many frocks it should make this season. The new patterns are fascinating. There are solid colors, with large block figures interspersed at intervals, all over check and corded patterns, ratines with a border in checkerboard effect, and, new this season, ratines with a drop-stitch or open-work check and stripe.

And next to ratine, says fashion, there are the cotton crepes. Noil is the cotton crepe which goes by the name at present anything like it used to be. There are as many weights and weaves as there are of silk crepes, which come in a wonderful range of solid colors. One of the smartest of these heavier crepes is of English weave, with an open work lace stripe about three-quarters of an inch wide at four-inch intervals. Another rather heavy new crepe has a weave almost like corduroy.

A silk and cotton pebbly crepe, with an almost invisible stripe weave would make very smart tailored cotton frocks. Then there is a cotton canton crepe which is very popular. It is shown in a big range of solid colors. A rather coarsely woven pebbly crepe, almost as heavy as ratine is 40 inches wide.

As for the sheer imported crepes in delicate pastel colorings—well, voile, it is said, has a wonderfully big season after several years of comparative unpopularity—but it has a dangerous rival in those sheer crepes with shadow check and cross-bar and stripe designs, but one may buy imported voiles and canton crepes strewn all over with embroidered designs.

The popularity of the printed fabric is absolute for spring, a fact borne out by reviews of lines of all descriptions. Blouses, dresses and three-piece costumes all take advantage of the many possibilities offered by the printed surfaces and employ them to the best advantage.

The plain fabrics are not neglected, however, for in many instances they are brought into play through combinations with the printed numbers. Three-piece suits for summer wear show blouses of a plain material, while the jacket and skirt choose a printed crepe. In some instances the order is reversed but in any event the utmost that the fabrics offer is appreciated.

A SMART THREE-PIECE SUIT

This chic three-piece suit for outdoor wear is of "chummy crepe" with a bold hand-blocked Persian motif.

Beads in Small Sizes.

China beads in the smallest sizes are favored in the embroideries chosen to decorate the printed fabric frocks of more elaborate design. Both the flower and other decorative outlines that are modish in the prints show evidence of bead enhancement, while the use of borders consisting of a series of straight lines in vari-colored effects is also noteworthy.

Vogue for Egyptian.

The vogue for Egyptian ornaments, though widely spread all winter, has been given a new impetus by the excavations along the Nile. A headdress designed from that found in the tomb of an Egyptian princess is now being worn with draped evening gowns. The headdress covers the whole head and has long tassels over the ears.

Thackeray and the Pantomime.

It is recalled that William Makepeace Thackeray was a fervent admirer of pantomime, and he never missed viewing one if he could help it. He admitted, though, that "very few men could expect to see all the pantomimes of one season."

TWILIGHT OF THE KINGS.

Monarchy is exploded and the royal game is up, according to Francis Hackett, who writes from Europe to the New York World. He gives a list of literary and other prominent Englishmen who have refused knighthood because there is nothing in it, mentioning one of the journalist-knights who got his title during the war and now says it wasn't his fault, adding, "but, you know, it is very useful in America." It is true that the English still "treat the defunct institution with touching kindness;" they don't want to "hurt the King's feelings," and so monarchy's death in England is a lingering one. Hackett writes:

The case for Kings is no longer political. Their hold has become ornamental. They keep their place because some people want their social leaders to be decorative and picturesque. After many years in the midst of England's luxury landscape Henry James visited New York society and sat in the lap of Fifth avenue. At 11 p. m. he began to feel miserable. He could think of nothing but the old folk-song, "All Dressed Up and Nowhere to Go." After London the New York social game was kaffee-klatsch to Henry James. What is the good of putting on clothes and tiaras and chandeliers of jewelry if there is no high spot in the end? In craving something more regal than the Taft or McKinley family, H. James wasn't so different from the wealthier Americans.

Undoubtedly, from the point of view of the British upper class and "the wealthier Americans," a society headship by royal right has its value. It is something that nobody can question or contest. It is not merely ornamental, decorative and picturesque; it gives an air of reality, permanence, stability, to the elect circle. But what do the masses get out of it—except heavier taxes? The low estate of contemporary royalty was never so clearly revealed as when Prince Andrew of Greece recently saved his neck by the plea that he was not responsible for his military blunders like a regular general because he got the job only because he was the figurehead King's brother, thus confessing that only incompetence backed by expensive uniforms could be expected of a prince.

READING FOR THE DESERT.

When six Princeton professors were recently asked what ten books they would choose to take with them to spend the rest of their lives on a desert island, all but one submitted full lists of acknowledged classics, either because they sincerely preferred them or because they knew their position demanded such choice. Six chose Shakespeare, four chose the Bible and the other works included such classics as Homer's Iliad. It would be interesting to know of possible variation in these lists in case the six professors had not been on parade and had not been concerned about their literary reputation. This suggestion brings us to the one exception referred to above. Dr. Henry Van Dyck, who, after selecting the Bible, Shakespeare, the "Home Book of Verse," Plutarch's "Lives," Thackeray's "Henry Esmond," and an edition of Wordsworth, would go no further, declaring that he "wished to reserve the other four until just before packing up" for the journey to the proposed desert isle.

It has been suggested that he probably wished to slip in at least a couple of his own books, and if he did, who can blame him? It stands to reason that any author, even if he did not rate his own books very high, would like to carry at least one or two of them to a desert isle, in order to go over them during some of the long, inactive hours and be reminded of his literary labors or achievements in the earlier and closed chapter of his life.

The mere fact that President Harding asked the senate to endorse the protocol for the International Court at The Hague does not mean that there will be executive pressure for favorable action. Neither does it mean that the proposition will be even a minor issue in the Presidential campaign next year. The president's message was sent to the senate so late in the session that action was impossible before adjournment. Mr. Harding knew that such would be the case and made no attempt to force immediate consideration. His real purpose in submitting the suggestion when he did was to get it before the country in advance of the nine months' recess of the senate. The people will have until next December to go thoroughly into every phase of the question, and when it is taken up again by the senators their constituents will be in position to make intelligent comment upon it. President Harding has felt very deeply on some of the measures that he has recommended to congress, but in no case has he attempted to bring pressure to bear to win his point. His attitude has been in striking contrast with that of his predecessor in the White House.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. If you find eggs in a nest, how can you tell what kind they are?

2. Why don't jute goods, rugs for instance, wear very well?

3. What makes pictures, such as trees and grass, collect on frozen windows?

Answers In Tomorrow's Nature Notes

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Do wrens do any harm?

Any is an elastic word. Wrens are counted helpful, consuming quantities of insects. They do some harm by picking into eggs of other birds, as yellow warblers, chipping sparrows, etc., reducing the number of young these desirable birds would produce. The motive is supposed to be to get rid of rival feeders. Wrens sometimes fill up other birds' nests, presumably with the same idea.

2. Can you recommend trustworthy books on mushroom growing?

Farmers' Bulletin 796, Some Common Edible and Poisonous Mushrooms, F. B. 204, the Cultivation of Mushrooms, and F. B. 789, Mushroom Pests and How to Control Them are helpful. B. M. Duggar's Mushroom Growing is a definite and practical handbook by an authority on the subject.

3. Please tell me what an iguana is, and how to pronounce it?

Pronounced "ee-wa-na." A large lizard found in warm parts of South America, Central America, Mexico and West Indies. One species is found in the extreme southwest United States. The Cape Iguana of Lower California has spiny crest on part of the ridge of the back and the upper part of the tail. Grayish green with some black markings. Another one in Southern Arizona is all black with tail stiffly spined. Eats both vegetable food and small prey like birds and little mammals.

THE CLOVE.

The Clove, April 5.—Those who attended the oyster supper and dance at Alligerville Saturday night were Mr. and Mrs. John C. Yeaple and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rhinehart, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sheeley, Ida Sheeley, Mr. and Mrs. John DePuy and Clyde DuBois. A fine time was reported.

Miss Lillian Mutschler of Brooklyn is spending her Easter vacation with friends in this place.

Miss Matilda Onesta of New York spent the week end with Mrs. Charles Marinaccio.

Mr. and Mrs. John K. DePuy, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sheeley and Miss Ida Sheeley spent Easter Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. S. DePuy at St. Josen.

John Trowbridge spent the week end at his home in Kingston.

Mrs. Fred Sheeley and Miss Ida Sheeley spent Tuesday in Kingston.

Frank Stephens and family have vacated the Mohonk pig farm and moved to Alligerville.

Miss Ida Stephens is staying with her sister, Mrs. Charles Rhinehart, for a time.

COOGAN FILM CALLED PERFECT

E. V. Durling, in the New York Globe writes of "Oliver Twist," Jacky Coogan's new film showing at Keeney's tonight and Saturday as follows:

The unusually energetic compiler of the advance notices of "Oliver Twist" is forgiven. Instead of being the purveyor of extravagant and unmerited praise we thought him, a viewing of the picture at the Strand carries the conviction that in reality he is rather a modest fellow. Or else words failed him, as they do the present writer in an effort to clearly express the feeling one experiences as the immortal tale of the boy who asked for more unwinds itself upon the screen. In so far as Jackie Coogan is concerned, "Oliver Twist" is a better picture than "The Kid." Teamed up with Chaplin we all thought him cute, but there was a suspicion that perhaps without Charlie he wouldn't be half so good. In the present instance young Coogan proves himself to be worthy of classification with those heretofore unapproachables—Pickford, Fairbanks and Chaplin. He is an actor in every sense of the word, and his appreciation and interpretation of the Dickens's character was nothing short of marvellous. The production is almost perfect.

ACCORD.

Accord, April 5.- Myron Markle and family have moved to Kingston.

On Wednesday evening, April 11, Dr. Meaker of the State College at Ithaca, will give a talk on oral hygiene in the M. E. Church hall. The talk, under the auspices of the Home Bureau, was to have been given last winter but owing to the severe weather had to be postponed. Everyone is cordially invited to hear Dr. Meaker.

Sometime during the last week in April or first of May, exact date to be announced later, a musical comedy entitled "The Minister's Wife Comes Back," will be given by Kingston talent for the benefit of the Accord Home Bureau.

A dance will be held at the Odd Fellows' Hall, Accord on Wednesday evening, April 11.

The ladies of the Country Women's Club meet at the M. E. Church hall Thursday, April 12 at 10 o'clock. They are requested to bring rags for sewing and bring their lunch. All ladies of the church are cordially invited.

The Easter service was well attended at the M. E. Church last Sunday. The Rev. W. W. Churchill preached the last sermon before conference. There was special music by the choir. Mrs. Caroline Christiana sang beautifully "Consider the Lilies." The children sang "Risen." William Freer and family very kindly remembered the service by bringing Easter lilies, coming all the way from Kingston on Saturday evening. Congregation thanks them for their kindness in remembering the Accord M. E. Church every Easter.

Mrs. Alton D. Schoonmaker has returned to her home at Fort Morgan, Colorado, after spending a few weeks at the home of her brother-in-law's, D. E. Schoonmaker.

Mrs. Henry Pickin of Kingston is visiting her mother, Mrs. Grace Ford.

The Rondout Valley Cooperative Poultry Association received 228 cases of eggs last week.

RURAL SCHOOL BILL HEARING APRIL 11

The date for the hearing on the Rural School Bill has been fixed for 2 p. m. Wednesday, April 11, at the assembly chamber in the capitol. As this is one of the most important bills affecting rural life before the legislature, it is expected that there will be a big attendance. Those who oppose the bill, ask that action be deferred a year. The friends of the bill say that improvement of the rural schools has been deferred long enough, and point out that the bill will not go into effect until August, 1924, and another legislature will meet before then.

Private J. M. Dalzell.

Private J. M. Dalzell, known to Grand Army men all over the country, has just been presented the degree of Bachelor of Arts by the Washington and Jefferson University, sixty years after he left his studies there to join the Union Army at the outbreak of the Civil War. AUTOMOBILE HITS TROLLEY CAR

Auto Driver Surprised When Woman Stepped From Curb to Enter Trolley From Left Hand Side.

A Studebaker runabout driven by F. L. Beagle, a salesman of Poughkeepsie, and a Kingston City division trolley car collided at the corner of Broadway and West Chestnut street about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Both cars were damaged. The Studebaker suffered perhaps more than the trolley car which lost a step in the fray. Beagle was proceeding down Broadway and the trolley car was bound uptown. Beagle, who did not know that both sides of the local trolley cars are used to enter and exit was but a short distance from the car when a woman stepped out from the curb directly in front of his car and in order to avoid hitting her he turned sharply toward the car, choosing the slowly moving car to striking the woman. A head-on crash was the result. Both the car and the automobile however were moving slowly. Beagle claims that he was not expecting anyone to enter the car from the left hand side and was consequently surprised when someone stepped from the curb to enter the trolley car from the left. In most cities cars may be entered or left from only the right hand side.

NEW GRANDCHILD CAUSED HIM TO CELEBRATE; IS ARRESTED

Shandaken Man Fights With West Shore Conductor Thursday.

Norman McFarland 48, married, a pipe fitter of Shandaken, was arrested in Newburgh Thursday charged with disorderly conduct. A telegram was sent from Highland to Newburgh stating that McFarland was raising a general disturbance on the train and fighting the conductor. The train was met at that city and Norman removed. At police headquarters a quart of Kentucky whiskey was found in his pocket. He told the police he was on his way to visit his married daughter at Pompton Lake, N J., who had just become the mother of her first child. The whiskey was for the celebration. Judge Decker sentenced Norman to thirty days in the Orange county Jail.

Lutheran Saturday School.

The Saturday school of the Spring Street Lutheran Church will reopen tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. The aim of this school is to give the children a religious training and to prepare them for confirmation and first communion. The instructions are given by the pastor from 9 to 10 o'clock and by Prof. J. Stumpf from 10 to 11:30 a. m. Children of the age of 10 years may attend this school until they attain the required age for confirmation. Children, who wish to be confirmed next year must attend at least one year. The confirmation class for next Easter will be organized tomorrow.

International Date Line.

The international date line, at or near the one-hundred eightieth meridian, is the imaginary line at which dates change, being made later by one day west and earlier by one day by those crossing from west to east. The line is somewhat irregular in order to separate the islands of the Pacific in such way that those lying to the east of it carry the same date as the United States, while those to the west of it carry the same date as Japan and Australia. It is employed in order to avoid confusion of dates which would necessarily result from gain of one day on the one side and loss of a day on the other in traveling around the globe. The dates in use upon most of the Pacific islands are those which resulted from the dates carried by the first European and American colonists, these dates differing as the colonists came from the east or west.

Popping the Question in Switzerland.

Suppose that a young woman told her parents that she was engaged to a certain young man, and that when he called at the house the parents offered him an old cheese. What would he do? In the Zermatt valley, Switzerland, that means consent. When they approve of the match, the parents offer the suitor a taste of their old cheese. Courtship is by symbol in Val Verzasca, Switzerland, words not being necessary. The lover places a log of wood before the door of a maiden. If she takes it in, she accepts him. He is rejected if she leaves the log outside. In certain parishes of Valais, wedding garments for brides and grooms are kept in carved chests in the parish house. They are loaned to couples too poor to buy them.

The "Gordon Riots."

A graphic picture of the scenes in London during what was known as the "Gordon Riots" in 1780, is given by Dickens in his story of "Barnaby Rudge." An act, passed for relieving Roman Catholics from certain liabilities, brought about the riots. Associations to secure the repeal of the act were formed in Scotland and in the metropolis. A London leader was found in Lord George Gordon, who undertook to present a petition to the house of commons. The mob, however, soon got out of hand and in the riots which ensued Newgate prison was attacked and burned, besides other prisons, and many houses of foreign ambassadors, judges and political personages who had incurred the antipathy of the mob.

Perfection a Phantom.

There is no such thing as absolute perfection in this old vale of tears and laughter and, after a man with infinite toil and endeavor has got so that he can remember to butter only one bite of bread at a time, he is arraigned in the most severe terms as soon as the company's gone on account of the size of the bites.—Ohio State Journal.

FAIRYLAND CIRCUS

"The circus is coming to Fairyland, the circus is coming to Fairyland," said the Fairy Queen.

And as she said this a band struck up, and what should be seen coming down through the wooded paths of Fairyland but a circus parade.

All the Fairies rushed about and perched themselves on the toadstools and in the trees and upon the old stumps of trees, and some stood along the paths which would be the route the circus would take, so explained Effie Elf.

She seemed to know all about it.

Sometimes a Fairy would say:

"Are you sure, Effie Elf, that the circus will come along this way?"

And Effie Elf made no mistakes.

Sometimes when the circus parade seemed to be going along another way it came back along the way Effie Elf said, for she had been told the route in advance.

And you know how nice it is to know a circus route in advance.

Even then you may be a little worried that the parade may not come down your street, even if you have been told it would, and how joyous it is when at last you see the parade coming down your street—even though you have followed it all about.

At the head of the parade was Old Mr. Giant. He was the drum-major. When he threw a stick into the air it seemed to go so far up in the air that it was hard to see it until it was seen coming down again.

"Just Waiting to Be Eaten."

For Mr. Giant was so tall himself to start with.

His stick was a handsome affair, decorated with red tassels.

Then came Witty Witch, and she was riding a make-believe camel.

The camel was really made up of Billie Brownie and Bennie Brownie and the Brownie Twins, and what a time they did have with their pillow-humps which Ollie Oaf had made for them.

The humps fell about in so curious a way.

Then there was a band wagon which they had first heard, and Eddy Elf led the band. They had fine costumes of red and the wagon was painted red, too.

It was pulled along by some of the members of the Oaf family, who wore plumes on their heads to make them look something like horses.

Then Eddy Elf looked like a lion. In fact no one knew until afterward that it was Eddy who was the lion. He roared splendidly.

Eddy marched along, roaring as he went.

He wore a big sign about his neck which read:

"This wild beast enjoys being fed. Ice cream cones are particularly popular with him."

And as luck would have it, Princess Fairy Joy rushed to the Fairy Ice-Box and found an ice cream cone just waiting to be eaten—for it had melted a little about the sides, which showed it was waiting to be eaten.

Then the rest of the Brownies were clowns, and they went along making all sorts of funny remarks.

They spoke of the Fairyland people and made merry jokes about them—nice, friendly jokes.

Oh, it was a splendid parade.

And after the parade was all over they put up a tent and gave a magnificent circus performance. Those who were not performers took the parts of animals.

They jumped through hoops, they turned somersaults and they sold peanuts and popcorn and woodland lemonade and they charged only laughter for all of these things!

"Oh, what a surprise it was," said the Fairy Queen, when it was all over. "I didn't know a thing about it until Effie Elf spoke to me about it just before I called out that the circus was coming.

"Oh, you've given Fairyland a most beautiful treat."

And how pleased Old Mr. Giant was, for it had been his idea in the first place, while Witty Witch and the others had been only too glad to help him with it.

For it was such fun to give a circus for the Queen of the Fairies and her people. It was the greatest fun imaginable.

And the Fairy Queen said that she hadn't laughed so hard in ever so long, which greatly flattered and pleased the clowns.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

A variety for the table is the constant aim of the thrifty housewife.

The using of every particle of food with no waste and serving a variety is a study and needs the closest attention of the housewife.

The following is something out of the ordinary and may be used for a company dish:

Stuffed Olives in Aspic.—Stone large-sized green olives and fill the cavities with green butter. Place small molds in a pan of ice water and pour in the aspic jelly mixture one-fourth-inch deep. When firm put an olive in each mold and add aspic by spoonfuls until the mold is filled. Chill thoroughly, remove from the mold and garnish with strips of red pepper. For the green butter, mix the yolk of hard-cooked egg with softened butter, a sprig of minced parsley and one of tarragon, one small shallot, anchovy paste and a few capers with one teaspoonful of chopped gerkins or pickles. Pound in a mortar, then put through a sieve. Season with salt, pepper and a few drops of vinegar.

Stuffed Prunes.—Take the large-sized prunes, wash, soak and simmer until tender. Pit them and fill some with creamed cheese and chopped olives; others with fondant and a blanched almond for center. Seeded raisins, maple sugar, nuts and dates chopped and mixed together make a good filling, or use a spiced fondant, prepared by adding cinnamon, clove, allspice and nutmeg to foudant. Form in a roll and inclose in the prune.

Fish Balls.—Put two cupfuls of mashed potato into a frying pan. Add salt, pepper and a little milk and some finely minced green onions and parsley. Cook slowly until well blended. Add the yolk of an egg and one cupful of shredded fish, previously cooked. Mix well, form into balls, dip in egg white, then in cracker crumbs and fry a golden brown.

When frying bacon attend strictly to it, or it will be either overdone or burned in streaks. When liked crisp and dry, remove the fat when it is still cooking, tip the frying pan to drain off further surplus fat and the bacon will be crisp and dry.

CAPT. OSTERHOUT PREVENTS SUICIDE

The following item from the Chelsea and Greenwich Village News of March 31st will doubtless be of gratifying interest to the many relatives and friends of Captain Charles Osterhout who is a former Accord resident:

Capt. C. J. Osterhout, who resides at 118 Charles street and is in command of the municipal ferry boat Harlem, running between Ninety-second street, Manhattan and Astoria, saved a would be suicide from carrying out her purpose on Sunday afternoon last. On the 3:30 trip from Astoria a woman in mourning jumped into the river from the boat. The captain maneuvered until he espied her in the stream and then he followed her erratic course with his deck hands standing by with boat hooks to drag her out. The captain followed her for a quarter of a mile as her position altered in the rapid currents of the East river. Finally he nosed up close enough for the boat hooks to seize her clothing and she was pulled on board. The captain then raced back to Astoria with the unconscious woman and a pulmotor was summoned from St. John's Hospital. She was finally revived by Dr. Kalina. She gave her name as Mrs. Katrina Vasti of 1101 Van Alst avenue, Astoria. She refused to give any reason for her desperate act.

Captain Osterhout deserves the highest praise not only for the rescue but for the skillful way he guided his craft through the treacherous waters of Hell Gate.

DRANK A WELL DRY IN OPENER

Busters Introduce Gallupers to Sizzle William Wacko, the Man With the Thirst Curve—Roodboy's Quick Thinking Wins Game in Mountain League.

It was 70 degrees in the shade with a prospect of white heat for it was "Opening Day" in the Mountain League with the fast travelling Gallupers and their ancient rivals, the Busters, locked in the throes of combat with each team determined to start the season with a credit mark in the "won" side of the ledger.

For the past week, Captain Ralph Roodboy and his Gallupers had been hard at work getting into condition for the opener. They had heard rumors that Captain Twin Gormley and his hard Busters were prepared to pring a sensation at the first game, but little the Gallupers realized what was in store for them.

Captain Roodboy had early decided to preside on the slab for his Gallupers as he believed that Captain Gormley would also officiate for the Busters but little he knew what the Buster's captain had up his sleeve.

The large grandstand was early filled and hundreds had to be turned away as there was no room for them on the playing field when the two rivals of the diamond took the field and the umpire unwrapping a brand new ball called "Play Ball."

The Gallupers had won the toss and decided to take the field first, and Captain Roodboy showed he was in mid-season form by mowing down the opposing Busters three in a row. When the Busters took the field it was seen that there was a new face in the lineup.

"Who they gonna have toss 'em over," muttered Blink Riven who was draped on the players' bench.

"He's a stranger to me," replied Roodboy as he eyed the lanky twirler.

"Meet Sizzle William Wacko," announced Umpire Fairvow to the fans and Sizzle William bowed and blushed and then wound up and delivered his first ball. As he did so Raiser Park, who headed the batting list of the Gallupers, was seen to wipe his lips feverishly and then swing wildly. Twice more Raiser repeated the performance and then dropping the bat rushed wildly toward the water pail bellowing "Hey kid give me a drink quick."

When the same thing was repeated by the other Gallupers who failed to hit the ball at all Captain Roodboy began to take notice.

"What kind of curves is he handing out?" he asked Raiser.

"Not for me," replied Raiser sheepishly. "But it looks like a thirst curve to me."

"Thirst curve?" asked Roodboy incredulously.

"Sure," retorted Raiser "for when it comes toward you all you feel like hitting is the water pail as quick as you can."

Not to keep the fans in suspense it must be stated here that Sizzle William got out of throwing a spitter was using lemon juice mixed with some other substance and rubbed on the ball before delivering it.

Word got out of the thirst curve the water boy of the Gallupers collapsed before three innings had passed into the fray and it was necessary to get in a number of youngsters and equip them with pails until there was a relay of loaded water pails reaching from some place to the well five hundred feet distant.

"Captain," said one of the water boys to Roodboy "the blame well is about dry."

Roodboy was noted as a quick thinker, and he realized that if something was not done to offset the effects of the thirst curve that his players would be so busy from carrying so much water inside them they would be unable to play, and also that the well was about exhausted of water.

"Here boy," said Roodboy shoving some money into one of the lad's hands "hustle to the nearest drug store and get a dozen sponges."

So, kin, the sponges in a combination of limburger cheese and sauerkraut Roodboy applied one under the nose of each Galluper as they strode to the bat. As a result the effect of the thirst curve was eliminated and the Gallupers managed to bat out a few hits scoring two runs and the game.

Gormley was rather glum at the close of the game to see his new twirler and his thirst curve go down to defeat. "It's the fortune of baseball" he said "but wait until we 18 meet again."

THE OFFICE CAT

By Jamie

More Money!

Under the spreading chestnut tree,
The village smithy stands,
The smith, a mighty man is he
With strong and sinewy hands.
Said he, "I've worked too hard.
I'll grow a beard, I vow."
His brother did the same thing
And they're selling cough drops now.

For some people giving thanks is even a sacrifice.

Some birds who think they are wise stand on dollars to pick up pennies.

You won't go to heaven just because somebody scares you about hell.

Here is a brand new idea incubated by William Southern in the Independence, Kans. Examiner. While establishing a dangerous precedent it might be worth trying just for the novelty, he says:

I have discovered a way to keep the atmosphere of the home clear and delightful. It came to me from the customs of travel. In a hotel or a restaurant or in a diner it is always the custom to leave a piece of money for the waiter. If you do not follow this custom you will do well to hunt another table next time. It is unnecessary to say that I do not like this custom, especially when I have to pay $2 for a $1 dinner. At home the wife gets up early and prepares a nice breakfast of grape fruit, crisp bacon, elegant toast and coffee. She knows just what I want and how to fix it and it is lots better than any restaurant will furnish. Do husbands ever leave a nice little tip at the plate? We do not. Just try it next time and keep it up, but you are warned that it had better be more than 10 per cent of the cost of the breakfast.

Passing off cold storage eggs is a shell game.

Making friends with the policeman may help you in a pinch.

Mistaking the new $5 gold piece for a penny means bad luck.

Some people believe that thrift is wishing they hadn't spent so much money last month.

Better shut up and seem dull than loosen up and be foolish.

Man of Letters.

The Cockney muffs his h's,
The Frenchman works his Z's;
While touring 'round in any land,
The hobo takes his o's.

Everything is missed by him who waits.

A woman likes to be present and see a husband enjoy himself, not hear him tell about it afterward.

PALENTOWN.

Palentown, April 6—Master James Palen is spending some time with his grandparents at Ellenville.

Lester Roosa, the teacher, spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of Mr. Stein at Stone Ridge.

John Traver and John Markle are busy cutting timber.

William Dymond expects to go to Lake Mohonk soon.

Mr. Roosa is well liked by all his pupils, who are doing excellent work this year, and all are hoping he will return next term.

Master Lawrence Shurter of Samsonville, recently visited at his grandmother's in this place.

Stanley Krom and family of Maybrook, are visiting at Virgil Barringer's.

Jesse Palen is busy drawing pine timber to Samsonville.

Horace Dymond has been employed at Horace Myer's of Samsonville.

Lester Roosa made a trip to Kernonkson Monday morning.

Jesse O. Palen and wife spent Easter Sunday at Ellenville, with Mrs. Palen's parents.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Everett Brannen, a son.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Barley and daughter Vera Mae visited at Keator's Easter.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. William Dymond in the loss of their infant son Gordon, who was buried at Hurley Saturday, March 31st.

Grover Winchell of Winchell's fire insurance agency, was in this place Tuesday.

Virgil Barringer, who has been confined to his home for a month, is slowly improving.

Eula May Krom of Maybrook is attending school here.

Norman Bell has been helping saw wood at Albert Wells's.

KIWANIS HAS A FINE DINNER

At Church of the Comforter—Its Pastor Speaks on Purposes Common to Kiwanis and Christianity.

The Kiwanis Club left the beaten path Thursday and lunched in the Sunday school room of the Church of the Comforter and had no cause for regret. The pastor, the Rev. W. F. Stowe, talked informally on loyalty and fraternity and admitted that the women of his church were good cooks. He ran no risk in saying this, because it is doubtful if Kiwanis ever had a more satisfying meal anywhere than the one they had just finished. Many expressed the wish to go to the church for another luncheon and it is thought this can be arranged.

Many of the visitors didn't know much about this little church close by No. 5 school and were surprised to note on the Sunday school blackboard that the school had a membership of over 300 and were told the men's club numbered considerably over 100.

The attendance prize was a large box of A. E. Jansen's best New Paltz apples, the pick of a stock from which 17 carloads have been marketed this winter. It was won by the Rev. W. J. Nelson.

The Rev. Mr. Stowe, the day's speaker, noted with pleasure the spirit of fellowship that prevailed among his visitors, the determination not to let race, creed or other causes prevent a complete acquaintance, understanding and fraternity, the ultimate aim of Christianity. "One man," he quoted, "is no man," and human progress would be quickened only as men came closer together in common unity.

Maximilian Harden INT'L

Maximilian Harden, noted German editor and publicist, has begun a series of articles in which he proposes the organization of "The United States of Europe," fashioned after the United States of America. This union of the various European states, Harden believes, is the only solution of the existing crisis.

The Importance of Good Telephone Habits

YOUR telephone habits determine the benefits you receive from the service to a greater extent than perhaps you realize.

When you crowd your words; let your voice fade toward the end of a sentence; hold the instrument too far from your lips; call a person and then make him wait until you are ready to talk — you do not get the best results from your use of the telephone. You make a less favorable impression; lose good will; and sometimes actual business.

Correct telephone habits are based upon the experience of thousands of telephone users. Underlying each habit is the fact that, being a cooperative product, telephone service is at its best only when every person who has anything to do with making and using a connection does that part properly.

The importance of good telephone practices increases with the use and dependence upon the telephone in business and social activities. In recognition of this fact we have outlined the right and wrong methods in a series of advertisements which will appear in this newspaper beginning next week. We believe these suggestions will prove of value to you.

The better your use of the telephone, the more valuable its service becomes.

WRITES FINIS TO CRIMINAL BOOK

Clanging of Prison Doors Adds Last Chapter to Unusual Bunco Career.

HOUNDED TO HIS GRAVE

Man Who Was Prey to Confidence Man Chased Him Until He Landed Him in Prison—Accomplice Also Jailed.

Los Angeles, Cal.—When the big iron gates of the penitentiary at San Quentin, Cal., clanged shut on Walter Lipps, former deputy sheriff of Los Angeles, the final chapter was written in the crime career of Joe Furey, king of bunco men. It also ended the strange story of a victim of Furey, a nemesis who drove the confidence man to his grave.

Famous as a Swindler.

Heading the best organized band of "bunco-steerers" in America, Furey operated from coast to coast, bought police protection and stole millions of dollars. Furey is buried in a cemetery near San Francisco, having died in a Texas prison. Lipps the former deputy sheriff will serve 14 years for accepting a bribe of $12,000 to permit Furey to escape.

One of the most relentless man hunts in police annals is unfolded by the story of Frank Norfleet, the man who brought Furey to justice. A little more than three years ago, while motoring with members of his gang in Texas, Furey's car broke down near Norfleet's ranch. Invited into the home until repairs were made, the gang bunkoed Norfleet out of $80,000.

Finally Cornered in Florida.

A week later, in El Paso, Tex., Norfleet identified police photographs of Furey and the latter was arrested in Los Angeles. He corrupted Lipps and escaped. Norfleet then took up the hunt alone and traced the swindler to New York, back to California, and then to Canada. There he cornered Furey, only to have himself jailed on representations by the bunco king. The latter fled to Mexico and then to Palm Beach, Fla., closely followed by Norfleet.

Used a Revolver in Getting Furey.

In the Florida winter resort Norfleet took no chances and used a revolver in getting Furey to the police station. The sharper was quickly extradited to Texas and sentenced to 25 years in prison, dying eight months later.

GIRL WIELDS GUN FOR GANG

Blue-Eyed Flapper Points Gat for New York Robbers Who Steal Taxicab.

New York.—Four sets of bandits, one with a blue-eyed flapper to carry the gat and point it, "entertained" in three of New York's boroughs.

One set of highwaymen held up a car of the Municipal bank of Brooklyn, at the corner of Lincoln road and Bedford avenue in the Flatbush section the other day and robbed the messengers of a consignment of currency that was being taken to the Federal Reserve bank in Manhattan. The police reported the amount stolen as $50,000, but the cashier of the bank insisted that only $2,000 was lost.

The flapper bandit, actually wielding a revolver in the most approved style of the modern bandit, made her debut on Broadway early in the day and incidentally the financial rewards were trivial. The sum of $11.80 and a taxicab, were the losses reported to the police.

The lady bandit, of course, was pretty and attractive and well dressed. No feminine bandit could be otherwise and succeed. And this one even recognized the social requirements and was chaperoned by three men.

William Sussman was the taxi driver victim. He said the blue-eyed flapper held a blue steel-barreled pistol to his head while her "gentlemen" friends frisked him for the night's receipts in the shadows of Riverside drive. She still pointed the gun as the entire party drove off in his cab, promising to leave it for him at a certain uptown corner. This they did.

SHOKAN.

Shokan, April 5.—There will be preaching service in the Reformed Church Sunday, April 8, at 11 o'clock. Sunday school at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. W. Wardell spent the week end visiting her mother, Mrs. A. Giles.

By the looks of things Shokan is going to boom. Ground has been broken for three new bungalows to be built this spring.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Toceling and children are spending some time with Mrs. Toceling's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Weeks.

Miss Blanche Hughes spent the Easter vacation at her home here.

Long-Distance Smokes.

Extraordinary briar pipes, with stems over three feet long, are now on sale in the West end of London. They draw well and are as cool to smoke as an Oriental "bubble-bubble," but your trouble really begins when you try to light them. A candle is the only possible way, and you must also have a small table to rest the bowl on.

AN APOLOGY

We owe some of our customers an apology for the delay in delivering their orders this past winter. We know it must have been annoying to them, as it was obviously annoying to us. There was some reason for it, however.

FIRST—The stormy weather and blocked condition of the streets made the work of delivery slow and difficult.

SECOND—Our effort to give good goods at low prices and serve our customers under any cost or conditions, resulted in such an increased amount of business that we practically overreached our limit with our present facilities.

DR. GRINTON MAKES REPORT

honor to our faithful and devoted women.

Many and varied interests, and all of them seeking contributions, have claimed the attention of the churches. If we only had a few more Sundays in a year, we might have been able to give them all a hearing.

The Centenary interests have claimed much of our time and attention. My advices indicate the returns will not vary much from those of last year.

The "I Will Maintain" fund came at an unfortunate time. We were in the midst of the Conference Endowment campaign and the conflict of interests was damaging to both; notwithstanding this serious handicap, the results were quite gratifying to all concerned.

Three weeks in the early fall were given to a campaign of education in the interests of Christian Stewardship and Conference Endowment. We were honored and encouraged by the presence of our beloved Resident Bishop, who spent three days on the District delivering addresses on the "World Program" of The Methodist Episcopal Church. It was a great pleasure to the good people of these fortunate "groups" to meet our leader and listen to his inspiring suggestions and message. The Area secretary, Rev. Dr. E. A. Dent, and Brothers Shahan, Kelly, and Tamblyn, also rendered splendid service.

The Endowment cause was represented by the genial general secretary, W. E. Holloway, whose brotherliness and general helpfulness were much appreciated. A general plan of exchange of pulpits was arranged for the third Sunday in September; unfortunately the day proved stormy and militated against the success of the plan. An aggressive "Follow Up" campaign was organized by the pastors, and the latest returns indicate that about $17,000 has been subscribed, covering a period of three years. The plan of the secretary to underwrite the balance of the expectation did not meet with encouragement.

Among the Laymen, Fred A. Victor rendered splendid valiant service. Former Mayor Wilbur, of Poughkeepsie, and W. H. Van Benschoten, of New York, also rendered "first aid" when invited. H. H. Flemming was the lay chairman.

The District Conference, held at Saugerties in October, was an occasion of mental uplift, spiritual quickening and social fellowship. A strong program, representing the various interests of the church, held the close attention of the delegates throughout the sessions. A fitting climax of a great day was the soul-stirring address in the evening, of Bishop Joseph F. Berry of Philadelphia on the Evangelistic Passion.

Early in the Conference year a campaign was organized to increase the subscription list of the Christian Advocate, which met with marked success.

The Epworth League Convention was held the following day and the program was varied and interesting. The general secretary, Rev. Dr. C. E. Guthrie gave the evening address and held the close attention of the "Leaguers" and a great audience till a late hour.

"What The Catskills Are Doing For The Metropolis."

For several years the Ashokan reservoir has been supplying the City of New York with water and several little villages were submerged with water when the great dam was completed. About the middle of February, the Shandaken tunnel borers met in the center of one of the Catskill mountains and the news was flashed over the wires that the eighteen-mile tunnel on which the shaft workers had been occupied for five years, was completed. It will not be very long before the old village of Gilboa will be submerged. Our church long ago was condemned and purchased by the city, which permitted our few retainers there to use it temporarily as a place of worship.

About four months ago the committee on church location, accepted the offer of a site from I. C. Wykoff. A selection was made at the juncture of three roads, one leading to Conesville; another to Blenheim, and the third to Grand Gorge. The writer would have preferred improving the West Conesville church, situated two and a half miles from the new location, and using the balance of the money as an endowment fund; but public sentiment was strongly against this suggestion.

New York city not only "buys up our farms" and our streams, but she draws our young people from the little villages and hamlets and gives in return "Boarders," for the most part Jewish people from the east side, a few of whom we are able to benefit in a social way, and they will respond by aiding in financial support. But, the subject of religion, except in very rare instances, must be tabooed, or they will flock by themselves and will have none of us.

We are learning the place of "play" in character development. Considerable attention is given to religious education. Under the auspices of the Sunday School League and Missionary societies, classes are formed and helpful textbooks secured and studied.

Our Kingston churches are all giving special attention to high school pupils with special study classes for their instruction. The class work at Hobart, so ably organized last year, continues with increased interest. The Men's Forum Bible Class has an enrollment of forty-eight men.

The week-day Bible school at Cairo, with the pastor as teacher, has an average attendance of twenty-five. Epworth League chapters have been organized at Lexington, Fleischmanns and Delhi. At the latter place, once a month, a church day is held which brings together at some time during the day or evening all departments of church work.

At Margaretville a fine social and educational program continues throughout the year. In connection with the Presbyterian church a school of week-day religious instruction is held, and, with the strong cooperation of the parents, attendance is compulsory.

Oak Hill and New Baltimore also have fine educational programs. At Prattsville a store house Tithers' association has been organized with twenty-nine members.

Boy Scout troops have been enrolled at Bloomville, Jefferson and South Bethlehem.

Sunday schools have been reorganized at Halcott Center and Halcottsville.

At Glasco, through the generosity of the Washburn Brothers, brick manufacturers, a modern playground has been laid out with every possible equipment. It is under the supervision of the pastor, who says that its estimated value is $5,000.

Personal work in Evangelism has been the method largely employed throughout the year. Pastoral calling and oversight is an exceedingly important part of our work and very fruitful when faithfully executed.

We are not forgetting our Heritage. We have a definite message for the sinful and the erring. Some interesting cases of conversion afford great joy. On the Blenheim charge, a dairyman, with large interests, who had not entered a church in years, was converted and baptized and received into preparatory membership.

At Saugerties, at the farewell service conducted by the retiring pastor during the reception of a young man into membership, his father voluntarily presented himself at the altar as a penitent.

At Centerville, an aged blind drunkard was brought to the altar by his niece. A great change has been evidenced in his heart and life which has made a profound impression on the community.

My brethren, the old Gospel continues to be the power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth.

About fifteen churches have held special meetings, two or three of which were assisted by W. S. Maggs and his singer, J. W. Stahler. Nearly all the churches report some prepatory members.

East Kingston, Oak Hill, Olive Bridge, Lexington and Eddyville, under able leadership, show evidence of new life and power.

Before old winter showed its teeth, the writer held all-day quarterly meetings in many places, during which a fine spirit was manifested everywhere. Since then, much to his regret, so much time of necessity was consumed in traveling from place to place, that it has been impossible to take on any "extras."

My closing words are those of gratitude to my Heavenly Father for the good health He has vouchsafed me, whereby I have been able to keep all my appointments during the year, and would also testify with appreciation, more than words can express to the many, many courtesies extended to me by the warm-hearted folk of this great district.

Colors can and will last with P and G.

Many Philippine Dialects.

The languages spoken by the native inhabitants of the Philippine Islands are variously reckoned, some authors distinguishing as many as fifty, others twenty or less, a difference due to the variant definitions of "language" and "dialect." But all these languages or dialects belong to one or other of two classes, those of the Malayan race and those of the aboriginal inhabitants, the Aetas or Negritos.

"YALE" FRESHMEN WIN AT K. H. S.

The fresh girls at K. H. S. upheld their title of champions at end ball and newcomb Thursday afternoon, and won out against the picked teams from all other classes in the league. The freshmen played under the name of "Yale" and the opponents "Harvard." The Yale team won at end ball by a good margin, 44-35; but the newcomb match was tighter. Yale took the first game, 15-14; then Harvard came up and took the second, 15-11; Yale again won out in the last game, 15-13. The end ball was well played, but it was at newcomb that the girls showed up best. They have gotten the game down to a science, and their play was fast and accurate. There was much spirit prevalent in the gym, the girl rooters keeping the place ringing with cheers throughout. The winning of these games certainly gives the freshmen an excellent standing in inter-class athletics, the girls making up for the defeats of the boys' basketball team.

Those taking part in end ball:

Yale, (all freshmen): K. Bailey, G. Bowers, M. Britt, R. Cole, G. Castor, D. Cashin, D. Mac Fadden, E. Shick, S. Menzel, L. Gronemeyer, P. Gehringer, M. Hutton, M. Kelder, A. Will and M. DeWitt, captain.

Harvard, (picked from other teams): Seniors, F. Lennox, M. Hession; Juniors, A. Gorham, K. Cassidy, H. Mitchell, M. Carroll, M. Butler; Sophomores, O. Daeubler, H. Keoppen, L. Gassool, J. Fowler, M. Price, E. DeWitt and H. McCann, captain.

Those who took part in the newcomb match:

Yale: K. Brink, I. McClosky, E. Noviz, H. Cameron, A. Spader, H. Cashin, J. Ferraro, A. Cipnic, D. Fatum, G. Grosenbeck, E. Brigham, captain.

Harvard: Seniors, M. Dudley, O. Renson, A. Flick, E. Crispell; Juniors, F. Ellsworth, L. Noice, A. Gassool, A. Huestic, captain; Sophomores, S. Perlmann, A. Ward, M. McCutcheon.

These games were the last of their kind to be played in the league this season.

Cobwebs.

A cobweb is a spider's web, spun by a spider from material that its own body produces. These webs vary as much as do the nests of birds. Such webs are often found in the corners of unused rooms. They collect the dust and so become somewhat changed in appearance, but the web was spun by spiders, and not produced by the dust, which the web holds, or which has lodged on the web. Fine threads are also spun by caterpillars and wound into little rolls. In this the insect deposits its pupa, the third stage of the insect's life, and from which it emerges as a perfect insect. This envelope called a cocoon, in the case of the silkworm, supplies the material of which commercial silk is made.

Collectors Await Lost Coins.

While most New Yorkers are well acquainted with the spectacle of persons fishing through the sidewalk subway gratings for lost coins, only a few have come in contact with the devotees of the new profession of coin retrieving, who make a precarious living under ground watching for such coins as may drop through the gratings. The best location is found under the gratings near a news or candy stand, where there is a continual flood of coins from purchaser to proprietor. Not a few of them are dropped and find their way to the platforms below.—New York Sun.

Hudson's Bay Company.

The Hudson's Bay company, incorporated in 1670, connects, by uninterrupted lineage, the North American wilds of the moving picture set with the stern realities of an earlier day. The first records of this stanch example of British empirise contain the following notation of a shipment made to the company's posts shortly after the earliest expedition to Canada in 1668:

Two hundred fowling pieces with powder and shot.

Two hundred copper kettles.

Twelve gross knives.

One thousand hatchets.

The copper kettles used today in these northernmost outposts of civilization are practically identical in design with those of two centuries or more ago.

Boys Like the Beech.

The beech has many qualities which commend it for highway planting. It is a tree of rugged growth, with dense foliage of surpassing beauty, and lends genuine charm to the roadside landscape, says "Trees as Good Citizens," a book that goes into all kinds of tree planting in plain language. Its one drawback, a minor one, is that its smooth white bark is a perennial invitation to the carving of initials.

SPORTSMEN TO MEET AT PHOENICIA

David R. O. O. F. Hall at Phoenicia, on Thursday evening, April 12, at 8:15 o'clock. There will also be a lecture on the conservation of forests and game by a representative from the department at Albany. The pictures will be interesting to sportsmen and will be "The Catskill Style," showing the veteran trout fisherman, Old Al Whispell, in action, "A Deer Hunt," a Prisma picture, and "Working Together for Conservation." As the highways are excellent for autoists, it is hoped that the attendance will be large.

ENORMOUS EXPENSE ON TAXPAYERS IF SOCIAL WELFARE LEGISLATION PASSES LEGISLATURE

"Life of Nation and Liberty of People Jeopardized," Says Notable Women's Report—Minimum Wage Bills "Dishonest, Illegal and Tyrannical."

Albany—A bombshell was dropped into the camp of the proponents of minimum wage legislation when the Legislation Committee of the Buffalo City Federated Women's Clubs, representing nearly twelve thousand women, made a report which was sent to members of the legislature, scathingly denouncing the minimum wage bills under consideration, which still are a factor in determining whether Governor Smith or Speaker Machold dominates the situation at Albany. The governor was able to muster only 73 votes when the Minority Leader of the Assembly moved to discharge the Labor and Industry Committee from further consideration of the bill. He needed 76 votes to win.

The report of the Legislation Committee of the Buffalo Federated Women's Clubs it is declared, probably will strike the death blow at this and similar legislation because it is said to prove the contention of the Republican majority in the Assembly that the bills are so controversial as to demand further inquiry by the state. The Legislation Committee strikes hard in the report, declaring that the legislation is "dishonest", also "illegal and tyrannical", and that if it were passed the "life of the nation and liberty of the people would be jeopardized".

The full text of this astonishing report follows:

REPORT OF LEGISLATION COMMITTEE OF BUFFALO CITY FEDERATED WOMEN'S CLUBS ON THE MINIMUM WAGE BILLS IN THE NEW YORK LEGISLATURE, 1923.

The minimum Wage bills now pending before the Assembly of the Legislature consist of three proposed measures, viz.:

Bills No. 18, introduced by Hamill;

No. 421, introduced by McKee; and

No. 422, also introduced by McKee.

These three bills are more or less similar in effect, and an analysis of one will practically apply to all.

The bills are aimed at one result, to empower an arbitrary decision by a commission, appointed by the Governor, fixing the rate of wages which shall hereafter be paid by all employers of women and minors in all industries carried on in this State.

The modus operandi is provided as follows: A commission of three members is to be appointed, with such assistants as the commission may deem necessary (and it may be taken for granted that the commissioners will be generous in determining how many assistants are needed in fixing their salaries); which commission may institute inquiries covering every industry, and every branch of every industry, in all localities, where women and minors are employed. To that end the commission may appoint a board of conferees, 9 in number under Bill 422, but not limited as to number under the other two bills, which board shall be composed of three classes of conferees, equal in number, one-third of its members representing employees, one-third employers and one-third the public. But the commission has the exclusive power to select such boards. The board is given arbitrary power, to subpoena all the records of the employer which in any way relate to the wages paid or to the wages which could be paid, measured by the earnings of his business. If the employer refuses to disclose his books or records he may be punished for contempt. Upon the hearing before the board, or the subsequent hearings before the commission, witnesses may be produced, from any part of the State, and depositions taken outside of the State. The board is to take the evidence and decide what wages should be paid, the decision being in the form of a report to the commission. The commission is then to call a public meeting and hold a further hearing, at which both sides may be heard; following which last hearing, the commission is to render its decision, fixing the wages thereafter to be paid.

All three of the bills contain the following other provisions:

A provision that in the hearings, before both the boards and the commission, those tribunals shall not be bound to observe any existing rules of evidence, but may receive and give effect to hearsay or other objectionable evidence, in utter disregard of the safeguards which the law has created to permit only reliable and authentic evidence.

A provision that there shall be no appeal possible from any finding of fact made by the commission; in other words, the commission may make an arbitrary decision that an employer shall pay a certain rate, when the evidence conclusively proves that it is in excess of the earning power of the employees and greater than the proceeds of the business render possible, and yet no other tribunal can remedy the error of the ruling.

A provision that if the employer refuses thereafter to pay the rate fixed by the commission he shall be fined or imprisoned or both.

A provision that after decision has been rendered, if any employee is willing and agrees to work at a rate below that fixed she may at any time thereafter (which means at any time within the period of limitation, six years) sue the employer and recover the difference between the rate paid and the rate fixed, thus repudiating her contract; and further providing that if any such employee, through motives of honesty or policy, declines to repudiate her contract and bring suit, that the commission may compel her to assign her meritricious cause of action to it, so that the suit may be prosecuted in its name.

Upon a careful analysis of these bills and the effects which would follow their passage, we unqualifiedly condemn them, as unwise and illegal legislation.

Our reasons for this conclusion are as follows:

In the first place, if either of the bills is passed, the expense to the tax payers will be, in our opinion, enormous. The bills place no limit upon the number of hearings which may be held; in fact, they are so formed as to permit a separate hearing in the case of every individual employer; and in this State there are thousands of factories, stores, offices, restaurants, hotels and other industries employing women and minors. No limit as to the number of witnesses, or as to the distances from which they may be brought, or as to the length of the hearings, is contained in any of the bills. One of the measures charges against the State the witnesses fees paid by employers, and the other two give the employer no redress for such expenses; and all three bills compel the State to pay all the other expenses of the hearings. The salaries of the commissioners and their retinue of assistants though considerable, will be a mere drop in the bucket compared with the costs of witnesses, stenographers, et cetera, in the numerous hearings which will ensue upon the passage of such legislation. We feel that there should be a certainty of beneficial results to spring from the operation of such a law, before the expense of its enforcement would be justified; and in our opinion the results of such legislation would be the reverse of beneficial to anyone except those persons who profited by the new offices it would create.

In the second place, it seems inevitable to us that the effect of such laws would be to drive women and minors out of employment. We question whether any employer, harrassed by arbitrary investigations, required under penalty of punishment to exhibit the books and private data of his business, and precluded from deciding for himself what he could afford to pay his employees, would continue to employ women or minors. He might more safely and economically discharge the women and minors and employ the cheaper grades of adult male laborers. In which event the legislation would work the precise reverse of what was intended; it would result to the detriment of those it was intended to benefit.

In the third place, we are of the opinion that these laws, if passed, would never stand the test of constitutionality. They are plain infractions of two cardinal principles of our Constitution. They seek to impair and defeat the obligations of contracts voluntarily entered into between employers and employees, denying to both the right to deal with the other upon terms satisfactory to each. The provision which prohibits the making of a contract of employment upon terms other than those fixed by the commission, and which invalidates such a contract and permits the employee to disregard it, is in our opinion, not only invalid but dishonest; and the still more drastic provision empowering the commission to recover for an employee's wages in excess of the contract rate, even where the employee prefers to be honorable and live up to her agreement, is obviously illegal and tyrannical.

Those provisions which set at naught the rules of evidence, and those which permit the commission to make arbitrary decisions upon question of fact and deny all right of appeal thereon, we believe to be violations of the constitutional guaranties of due process of law and the right to a jury trial. The bills propose to vest in the commission the power to dictate the wages which an employer must pay, and deny him the right to appeal from such determination; and they further propose to penalize him for any infraction of the commission's decision. The decision need not be based upon competent evidence whatever; and yet it is made immune from question, so far as the finding of the rate of wages is concerned. In any prosecution against an employer, based upon his failure to pay such rate thereafter, the employer is precluded from showing that the rate fixed was excessive or beyond his ability to pay; and his guilt is made to depend upon the question only, whether he paid the rate directed or less. If less, then he must be found guilty of a crime and fined or imprisoned. He has never had his day in court, before any usual and competent tribunal; he has been deprived of liberty and property, as it seems to us without the benefit of those safeguards which the law affords. No court of original jurisdiction in this country has any such power, to finally dispose of questions of fact, even where their findings are based on competent evidence, as these bills accord to the proposed commission. There is always, under our judicial system, the right of review upon the facts, usually even where there is competent evidence to sustain the finding, and always where it appears there was no competent evidence whatever. And as we understand the principle of due process of law, it is violated in every case like that now presented, where persons are denied resort to the usual methods and tribunals for the protection and determination of their rights.

We wish to lend our support to all movements of reform which tend to ameliorate the condition of women in all walks of life. We realize that there are cases in which wages and working conditions are unfair. But such conditions can be remedied through proper organization of workers, as well as by other proper methods. It is not necessary or justified that statutes should be passed in violation of safeguards which are essential to the life of our nation and the liberty of our people.

We have grave doubts whether the intelligent majority of women workers at all approve the proposed legislation; in fact, our information is to the effect that the great majority of women in employment are opposed to its passage.

Wherefore, we respectfully request our representatives in the legislature to use their efforts for the defeat of the bills in question and all similar legislation.

The controversy over the minimum wage and eight-hour-day bills has been marked by notable bitterness and by intensive publicity on the part of the proponents which spared no one. While the Women's City club of Rochester and other club women favored the bills, the Buffalo City Federated Women's clubs legislative committee and many other club women and working women bitterly oppose them.

This marked difference of opinion was not confined to the women's clubs. Associated Industries of New York State, representing an investment in the state of more than two thousand millions of dollars and employing nearly 750,000 persons, was dragged into the controversy and lambasted right and left for what its executive staff was supposed to have done in connection with the bills.

"All we did was to present our views to the legislature exactly as did the proponents and other opponents," said Mark A. Daly, General Secretary of Associated Industries, "but we were credited with having all sorts of undue influence, sinister motives and all the other stock phrases used by the zealous proponents in their publicity work."

PAIR WERE TOO HAPPY TO LIVE

French Woman Kills Her Husband and Self Three Days After Wedding.

TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE

Happiness of Newly-Married Pair So Great Wife Knew It Couldn't Last, So Ended All Rather Than Suffer Disappointment.

Paris.—Because she was so happy she was afraid her happiness would not last, a woman killed her husband and then herself after three days of married life.

M. and Mme. Pierre Liebaut are the names of the couple, and for several hours the discovery of their death threatened to furnish Paris with an absorbing mystery. They were found dead in bed from shotgun wounds. Suicide seemed out of the question, for they had been married but three days and had been known as being absolutely devoted to each other. Financial difficulties could not furnish a reason, either, for M. Liebaut was comfortably fixed.

Letter Revealed Secret.

Robbery was the motive the police were working on until a thorough search of the newly-furnished home for clews resulted in the discovery of this letter in the handwriting of the wife:

"I am going to kill my husband, and then shoot myself. For three days we have been married, and our happiness has been such as to transcend imagination. We never conceived it possible that we could be so happy. Our happiness is so great, so very, very great it is impossible that it should continue,

Killed Her Husband and Then Herself.

therefore I have resolved that we should die before either of us experiences the slightest sense of disappointment."

"Murder and suicide; reason, jealousy," reads the cold, unimaginative police docket which deals in facts rather than in fancies.

PAIR END LIVES IN PACT

Actor and Stenographer, Forty-Seven, Swallow Poison in Hotel at Manila.

Manila.—Mrs. Anna M. Schlessinger, a stenographer, aged forty-seven, and George Baldwin, an actor known in New York and San Francisco, carried out a suicide pact by taking poison at a hotel here, according to the police, who blamed despondency.

Baldwin, formerly a member of stock companies in New York and San Francisco, came to Manila in January with the T. Daniel Frawley Stock company, and remained after the company left. He was understood to have been kept out of work for some time.

Mrs. Schlessinger had lived in Manila for several years. She came from San Francisco, where her husband still resides.

CALLS WRONG DEPARTMENT

As Man in Muddy Ditch Discovered When Firemen Answered His Summons.

New York.—When the horse driven by Abraham Sweet, thirty-three, of Jamaica, caught his leg in a rut in Jamaica and fell into a muddy ditch beside the roadway, Sweet made the mistake of calling the fire department instead of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

A hook and ladder truck and two hose trucks responded to his alarm of fire. Acting Chief Brennan was so angry when he saw there was no fire he asked the arrest of Sweet, who was fined $5 for disorderly conduct.

Two hours after the firemen arrived the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was able to release the horse from the ditch.

In Love and Business

By H. I. KING

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Mr. Danforth, I want to marry your daughter." Arthur Dutton made this statement as one high and mighty potentate might propose an alliance with another. Why should he not? He had been brought up to regard himself as a little better than his neighbors. From the time of his grandfather the Duttons had been the biggest people for miles around. His father owned the butter-tub factory at Duttonville and there was not another village nearer than ten miles. So Arthur went away to preparatory school and then to college imbued with a sense of superiority that did not desert him.

Arthur saw nothing presumptuous in demanding of John Danforth, the lord of mines and railroads, the hand of his daughter Eleanor. In his excursions into New York society he had met the girl and fallen in love with her, and Eleanor, after a very brief hesitation, had given her heart to this tall, aristocratic-looking young man from upstate. Danforth had seen Arthur calling at his house. When he sent in his card to Danforth's private office his name was recognized and the millionaire had him sent in. Whereupon Arthur made the statement with which this story begins.

"Now, Here's the Situation."

"Want to marry my daughter?" exclaimed Mr. Danforth. "Of course you do. Many young men would like to marry John Danforth's daughter. Pardon my curiosity, but have you any special qualifications for the position for which you propose yourself—that of my son-in-law? Oh, perhaps, I should not put it that way. From your manner I should gather that you think it more becoming of me to ask to what I am indebted for the honor you propose to confer on me."

"Well," replied Arthur, for the first time in his life fairly taken aback, "you see, sir, I love Eleanor and Eleanor loves me."

"Oh, I apprehend you—love's young dream—very pretty, I am sure. And may I ask of your ability to support my daughter in the style to which she has been accustomed? I believe that is the conventional phrase generally used by parents in my painful position."

Arthur was inclined to be sulky. "My father," he said, "is a manufacturer—makes butter tubs. He owns Duttonville, and I am his only child."

"Ah, indeed," smiled the millionaire. "So your father is Prince of Duttonville and you are the heir apparent? And how large might this principality of yours be now?"

"We have five factory houses and employ 20 men in the shop," growled Arthur. "It's a good paying business."

"No doubt," said Danforth. "Duttonville? Duttonville did you say?" And then after musing a minute he exclaimed: "By George, I believe that is the place. Is this principality of yours on the Kickimurit river, young man?"

"It is," snapped Arthur.

"Then sit down there and hold your tongue a minute. I want to talk to you about something of more importance than boy and girl whimseys," almost shouted Danforth. He touched a button in his desk and a clerk appeared. "Bring me the papers in the electric power company matter." The clerk disappeared, presently to return bearing a large number of filed and labeled documents.

"Now, here's the situation," said the millionaire, spreading some of the papers open on his desk. "I and some associates have formed the Excelsior Light and Power company. We propose to supply electric light and power to all that section of the state indicated by the blue lines drawn on this map."

He handed the map to Arthur, who gazed at it with interest and said: "A big project."

"It is," replied Danforth. "Now, your father's picayune little factory"—Arthur winced—"don't amount to shucks. But the water power he owns does. To complete our project we must have that water power. And Dutton won't sell. Writes that he's going to turn over the business to his son—that's you, I suppose—and in the meantime won't discuss anything. Now, this is what I propose."

For a solid hour and a half they talked business. Danforth entirely forgot the errand upon which Arthur had come and Arthur appeared to have forgotten it, also. In the younger man the millionaire found a business capacity and insight which made him think regretfully of his own youth, when he had begun the construction of the vast fabric of his fortune.

At length Danforth said: "We will go further into this tomorrow. Be here at ten o'clock. I guess you and I working together can astonish the natives."

"And what about my first proposition, Mr. Danforth?" asked Arthur.

"What, about continuing the tub factory? That goes, of course," answered the older man.

"No, sir, my proposition with regard to your daughter," said Arthur. The door opened and in came Eleanor, small, lively, a pretty blonde of most engaging manner.

"I've come to take you home, dad," she cried. "Why, Mr. Dutton, what are you and dad concocting between you?"

"Er-er—talking business," replied Arthur.

"I hope your talk was satisfactory," she laughed, telegraphing with her eyes. "Dad has the reputation of being a hard man to do business with, but also the reputation of never neglecting a good thing when he sees it. Come, dear."

Arthur accompanied them as far as the waiting motor. As Danforth was stepping into the car the young man said: "About that first proposition of mine, Mr. Danforth?"

"Oh, we'll talk that over later; perhaps we can arrange it." And arranged it was to the entire satisfaction of Eleanor and Arthur, the latter of whom is now vice president of the Excelsior Light and Power company and president of the Duttonville Butter Tub company, as well as son-in-law to Millionaire Danforth.

FAMOUS OLD FRENCH TOWNS

Carcassanne and Cordes Remind the Traveler of the Days of Knights and Armor.

Carcassanne and Cordes are cities in southern France which are perpetual reminders of the grim old days of knights and armor. In the former town there are massive ramparts in two circles, one within the other; the outer line circumscribes the town in unbroken majesty for almost a mile. The consecutive layers of masonry show how the builders in turn strengthened the defenses of their predecessors. The inner and outer walls are not quite parallel, and here and there a broad ribbon of greenery separates them. The space between the walls was called the lices, and in times of peace tournaments were held there.

Cordes, which is a blood brother to Carcassanne, was founded in 1222 by Raymond VII of Toulouse. This city is perched dizzily on an isolated hill, and is inclosed with ramparts of the Thirteenth century. There are three principal gates and one principal street, which runs like a spinal cord directly over the top of the hill and through the center of the diminutive metropolis. The other streets, which you can count on the fingers of one hand, meander off along the hillside. The crumbling houses that line the thoroughfares—some of which are shouldering the burden of seven centuries—are set at all angles as they cling to the precipitous slopes; some are of sculptured stone, and some are of plaster and half timber, and their eaves frequently project over the roadway. There are no sidewalks, the cobbled or pebbled streets serve man and beast alike.

Psychology of the Eyes.

When the hunter brings his shotgun to his shoulder, usually both eyes are open, but he sees only along the line of his barrel. The left eye sees the side of the gun, but this is useless, and the hunter is unaware of it. If two large pieces of paper, one colored green and one colored red, are held before the eyes so that the righ eye sees only green and the left eye only red, a curious thing occurs. One seems to see a whole field of red, or a whole field of green, sometimes a little of each field. But if a pencil is moved across the red paper the whole field of vision becomes red. If the pencil then is quickly moved eyes so that the right eye sees only green. That is, the pencil directs the attention to one field or the other and you see that color to which the attention is directed.—Prof. Henry C. McComas, in the North American Review.

Hair Wavers in Demand.

A limited market for hair wavers exists in the Dominican republic, in spite of the fact that kinked coiffures are natural to most of the natives. Local merchants secure merchandise of this kind where the amount and the value of the individual order is small from commission houses in New York. By so doing the local dealer can greatly cut down the number of individual accounts and shipments, says Consul W. A. Bickers, Puerta Plata, in a report to the Department of Commerce.

Disabled British Soldiers.

Disabled ex-service men in England who receive disability pensions number 900,000. Thirty thousand British firms have undertaken to employ such men to a fixed percentage of their total employees. Against this large number of private employers who sought to help is to be contrasted the fact that only about one-third of the public authorities employing labor have entered into the undertaking.—The Nation's Business.

TILE DRAINAGE OF ORCHARD

Just as Beneficial and Productive of Results as in Field of Corn or Potatoes.

Tile drainage is just as beneficial and productive of results in the average farm orchard as in the field of corn or potatoes. The orchard soil, we find, needs aerating and ventilating just as any other soil, and tiling renders the rootbed all the more retentive of needed moisture, so necessary to the fruit in the growing season, says a writer in Successful Farming. Wet soils are cold soils and often sour, neither of which produces the best of apples, peaches or pears. Cultivating the wet soil about the roots of the trees is just as damaging as plowing the wet soil about the roots of corn or potatoes for the time being and certain weeds are difficult of eradication in the orchards where it is too wet to work the ground.

None of the orchards set in the past have long remained in good, thrifty growing order when planted on poorly drained soil. So many we have known to select a high clay spot on the farm close to the residence for their orchard and then get such poor results many times because the soil itself was wet and poorly drained. It seems that surface drainage might be sufficient in one way since no water will stand on the surface about the trees, but it is that wet, clammy, cold clay about the roots that absorbs and holds the water which does the damage. The ideal orchard soil is that in which the water is either moving up or down every day in the year. In wet weather the rain or melting snow water seeps readily down to underground drains. In dry weather capillary action has become well established and the soil water is coming up to feed the trees from vast storage basins underground. In the wet, clammy, undrained rootbed the water neither moves up or down except in very limited quantities. For some reason the wet, undrained soil becomes practically closed to successful capillary action. It absorbs just so much water in times of flood and will not admit another drop.

There is a mistaken notion abroad that tile drainage removes much plant food from the soil. We find the well drained soil if anything becomes more fertile and productive with each passing season. The point disputed seems to be that the drainage in removing surplus water from the land also removes much potash and phosphorus soluble in this surplus water. A porous, well-drained soil, we find, becomes much like a great carbon or charcoal filter, and any elements removed by cropping are readily reabsorbed from the water which may bring any new supply along. Nature unlocks the elements for the roots of our orchard trees but permits very small amounts, if any, to escape through any artificial drain we may construct. This plant food absorbed from surface fertilizers and manures is quickly combined and locked into the subsoil combinations before it has any chance to escape. By draining our orchard soil we deepen the rootbed and give our trees a bigger, better feeding ground.

BEST LOCATION FOR ORCHARD

Site Should Have No Rock Ledges or Hardpan Over Surface and Be Well Drained.

The orchard must be on a good site with no rock ledges or hardpan over the surface, well drained and without unusual danger from frosts; the trees must have good vitality, without decayed trunks, cankers that girdle the limbs, or weakness that would make good growth impossible, and, finally, the varieties must be good unless it is practicable to top graft the trees.

LIME-SULPHUR KILLS SCALE

Too Many Growers Are Careless in Application and Insect Gets Considerable Start.

Concentrated lime-sulphur, one part to eight parts of water, has been recommended for the control of scale, but too many growers are careless in the application and the scale gets a start. Use either lime-sulphur or a good miscible oil. Scalecide is a miscible oil that is very effective in control of scale insects.

TIERNEY DECISION IS REVERSED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 6.—The appellate division of the supreme court today reversed the decision of Justice Tierney declaring the building tax-exemption law is unconstitutional.

The decision of the appellate division was unanimous.

HON. T. E. BENEDICT IS VIGOROUS AT 84.

The Hon. Thomas E. Benedict celebrated his 84th birthday on Tuesday, April 3. He had many callers during the day, including his daughter, Mrs. John D. Schoonmaker and family of this city.

Mr. Benedict enjoys excellent health, although the severity of the winter and especially the March weather was somewhat of a shock to his usual good health and vigor.

Few men in Ulster county who have led the active life followed by Mr. Benedict have reached his age. He has been a resident of the town of Wawarsing for more than sixty years. His most active years were those spent as public printer in Washington during the two terms of Grover Cleveland as president.

Mr. Benedict has many friends in Kingston who trust that balmy spring days will prove a sufficient inducement for him to visit Kingston in the not far distant future.

THREE HELD IN WOMEN'S MURDER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Jersey City, N. J., April 6.—Three men are detained in police headquarters here in connection with the brutal murder of Mrs. Irene Blandino and Miss Bessie McMahon, whose bodies were found on Staten Island today.

The men are James Blandino, husband of one of the murdered women, Nicholas Gregory, his brother and Rosario di Lorenzo. No charge has been made against the men and they are being held until police can check up their stories and movements last night.

Blandino said he had not seen his wife since 8:30 o'clock last night. He said he had often rebuked her recently because she was in the habit of joining gay night parties several times remaining away for two or three days at a stretch.

Utica, N. Y., April 6.—Mrs. Irene Blandino, who was found murdered on Staten Island this morning, was formerly Miss Irene Salerno of 704 Jay street this city. She went to the metropolis a few years ago. When a child, Mrs. Blandino lost her leg in a trolley car collision in this city.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons In This Vicinity.

William Grim died Wednesday at his home on Grand street, Highland.

Miss Mary J. Budd died at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. C. Snyder at 56 Gage street on March 22, 1923, in the 75th year of her age. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Agnes Brown of Leibhardt and Mrs. J. C. Snyder of this city with whom she made her home. The funeral was held Monday, March 26, at 10:30 a. m. from the funeral parlors of H. B. Humiston at Kerhonkson. Interment was in the Fantinekill cemetery at Ellenville.

Frederick Hummel died Thursday, April 5, in this city. Mr. Hummel was born in the town of Saugerties and came to this city about ten years ago. He was employed at the Universal Road Machinery Co., and was a member of the First Presbyterian Church. Besides his wife he is survived by two sons, Ford of Albany and Irving D. of this city. Funeral from the funeral home of William C. Kukuk on Saturday afternoon, April 7, at 1:30 o'clock. Interment in Kaatsban Cemetery.

Mrs. Mary H. Decker, formerly of Bridgeport, Conn., died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Bleecker, in New Paltz, on Sunday, April 1. Her age was about 74 years. The interment was in the Rosendale Cemetery on Wednesday. She leaves four daughters, Mrs. Bert Warner of Middletown, Mrs. Sidney Swain of Bridgeport, Conn., Theora Proctor of New York city and Mrs. William Bleecker of New Paltz, also one son, Fred Decker of Terra Haute, Ind.; also one brother, Eamon Wynkoop of Gardiner.

The funeral of Martin Gallagher, father of Frank E. Gallagher of this city, was held Thursday from his late home in Troy, N. Y. Mr. Gallagher one of the oldest native-born citizens of Troy, died last Sunday after an illness of four weeks. Mr. Gallagher was 81 years of age and had been connected with the Prison Department since 1899. During recent years he was parole officer in the New York city district. He retired from active service in 1920. Mr. Gallagher had a distinguished Civil War career having enlisted in the 6th Massachusetts Cavalry in 1862 and serving until the end of the war. The funeral was attended by a delegation from Post Criswold, G. A. R., and members of Troy Council, 176, K. of C., acted as bearers.

The funeral of the Rev. Benjamin Judd, presiding elder of the Hudson River district of the New York conference, on Tuesday afternoon was one of the largest ever held in the A. M. E. Zion Church at Newburgh. Not only were members of the local Newburgh church out in great numbers but also a large number of his friends from all along the Hudson valley. The funeral services were in charge of the Rev. John T. Matthews, pastor of the Newburgh Church. During the services many musical numbers were rendered and among them a duet, "In the Upper Garden," by Mrs. A. Vanderzee and Mrs. D. Fitzgerald, with Mr. McEnty presiding at the piano. All of these last named people were from this city. Many of the deceased friends from this city attended the services.

John Schrader died early this morning at his home, 513 Delaware avenue, after a few days' illness of bronchial pneumonia. He was forced to go to bed last Friday with a heavy cold and a few days after pneumonia developed. John Schrader was born at Eppelsheim, Germany, on December 24, 1851, the son of John and Suzanne Cushman Schrader. He came to the United States at the age of six. He was employed as an attendant at the Dr. Knapp hospital for twenty years, after which he was with the Knickerbocker Ice Company for twenty-five years. When the Knickerbocker Company sold their ice house at Kingston Point to the Hudson Navigation Company he entered the latter's employ and worked for them until last week when he was taken sick. Mr. Schrader made many friends in this city by his jovial disposition and readiness to help anyone out of trouble at any time. He was a steady and conscientious worker and a trusted employe of the Knickerbocker Company by whom he was employed for so many years. He is survived by his wife, Catherine Lemensdorf Schrader, one sister, Mrs Elizabeth Schuster, two daughters, Mary Schrader and Catherine Tremper, and five grandchildren.

The grown-up men and women of today are, in a sense, past saving. The best work of the republic is to save the children.—David Starr Jordan.

HAYNES APPEALS FOR CHURCH AID

With Its Support and That of Press, Force Wouldn't Be Needed—Kingston Arrests for Drunkenness Decreased 60 Per Cent.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 6.—An appeal to the churches of America to assist in the enforcement of prohibition was voiced today by Federal Prohibition Commissioner R. A. Haynes, in an address delivered before the Laymen's Association of the New York Methodist Episcopal Conference, in session here.

"As federal prohibition commissioner, if I could have the voice of all of America's pulpits, and the pen of the American press for a short while, the club of the policeman and the activities of the prohibition agent would be little needed," he said.

"In each particular age the church has had a particular task aside from its specific gospel preachment. This age's task is to render maximum aid in support of established law and thus the promotion of human betterment." In his appeal, the commissioner turned to the women voters as "the new political buttress" and urged that the mothers of America stand "100 per cent for the new order of things."

In his address the commissioner reviewed prohibition enforcement throughout the country, offering figures as a mark of progress.

"Listen to a few figures," he said, "notably from states where difficulties have been most pronounced.

"Massachusetts — Arrests for drunkenness have decreased 49 per cent during the three dry years as compared with the last three wet years.

"A decrease in the state reformatory for women of 84 per cent.

"A decrease in the state reformatory for men of 89 per cent.

"New York State—In New York city there are two sets of figures on intoxication, (1) the police record of arrests, and (2) the magistrate's courts' records of arraignments and convictions. These sets, while not identical numerically, agree in showing a decrease of more than 50 percent in the annual average number of cases in the two prohibition years as compared with the wet years.

"Compared with the last two wet years preceding the two dry years, shows the following percentages of decrease in arrests for drunkenness in the follow cities:

"Albany—81 per cent.
"Buffalo—43 per cent.
"Kingston—60 per cent.
"Rochester—46 per cent.
"Syracuse—69 per cent.
"Utica—55 per cent.
"White Plains—30 per cent.
"Mount Vernon—22 per cent.
"New York city—42 per cent."

SOVIETS WOULD TRY POPE WITHOUT HIM PRESENT

And Let Italian Reds Carry Out Sentence.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Riga, April 6—A Moscow despatch today quoted the official Bolshevist paper Pravda as advocating that Pope Pius XI, head of the Roman Catholic Church be tried in absentia (that is, with the defendant absent.) According to the Moscow newspaper, evidence was obtained at the recent trials of Archbishop Cieplak, Vicar-General Butkiewicz and other prelates which showed that the pontiff at Rome was "responsible for counter revolutionary activities."

The newspaper concluded by saying that the Italian Communists could execute any sentence that might be imposed.

KERN PLEADS GUILTY AND IS FINED $2,000

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 6.—Martin E. Kern, Allentown, Pa., capitalist, whose purchase of the Bosch Magneto Company from the alien property custodian during the war, caused a federal investigation of alleged irregularities in the sale, pleaded guilty to a charge of perjury in the federal court today and was fined $2,000.

The charge was based on misstatements by Kern in his application for a passport to Europe in January, 1922.

14 PROHIBITION AGENTS WERE KILLED IN 1922.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 6.—Fourteen prohibition agents were killed, 49 injured, more than 60,000 persons were arrested and nearly $10,000,000 worth of property was seized in liquor law enforcement in 1922, according to official figures made public today by Prohibition Commissioner Haynes's office.

The final showings of the Paramount picture, "The Tiger's Claw," starring Jack Holt, will take place at the Orpheum theatre this evening. There are six vaudeville acts. Tomorrow double features will be shown. John Gilbert in "Gleam O' Dawn" and Jack Mulhall in "The Law of the Sea."

Today Bird Day.

Today is the day designated by the State Department of Education as Bird Day.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 6.—The stock market opened strong and active today. Sugar stocks were prominent at advanced prices.

Persistent strength was shown in the first two hours of trading. The announcement that the railroads had authorized expenditure of $1,540,000,000 for equipment since February 1, 1922, in expectation of unprecedented traffic, had a stimulating effect on speculative sentiment.

After an interval of inactivity, in which prices receded somewhat from the early high marks, renewed buying came into the market, resulting in fresh advances. The buying of equipment stocks was particularly impressive.

POPE'S IRISH PEACE MISSION A FAILURE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 6.—The Irish mission of Monsignor Luzzio, who was sent to Ireland by Pope Pius XI in an attempt to assist the peace movement, has ended in failure, said a Dublin despatch to the Standard today.

Oldstyle Jonathan.

Oldstyle Jonathan is a pen name under which the well-known American author, Washington Irving, contributed in 1802 to the Morning Chronicle, at that time a popular newspaper published in New York city. Washington Irving lived from 1783 to 1859, and his works are among the best that have been produced on this continent. He wrote a humorous history of New York, sketches of life and scenes in England, a life of Columbus, and other works. His home beside the Hudson, a little north of New York, was called Sunny Side.

Fertilize the Soil.

Sometimes you see a man dig his toe into the ground and hear him say: "That soil's dead, it will not produce anything." You do not realize, perhaps, how true the words are. Good soil is literally living soil. An Ohio scientist, Professor McClure, declares that "a single teaspoonful of soil may contain more living inhabitants than the whole United States." It is these invisible but beneficent little people of the soil that unlock its stored-up fertility and cause the plants to grow. Without them farming would be impossible.—Farm Life.

Stern Parent, Indeed.

A teacher in the Indianapolis public schools was teaching reading by the phonetic method recently. Having success with small words, she started with a bit more difficult. She came to the word "stern." A small girl in the front row was asked to give the word. Slowly she spelled it, s-t-e-r-n, and then sounded the letters "st-ern." "Now use the word in a sentence," said the teacher. "Sometimes when I want to go to the movies, my papa says: 'Nothin' st-ern'" was her sentence.

AN EXPLANATION

"Had you any reason to doubt the girl's honesty?"

"None. While she was with us I missed seven silver spoons, a gold bracelet, a lot of preserves and—"

"That will do. Why did you say you didn't doubt her honesty?"

"Because I didn't think she had any honesty to doubt."

The Usual Golfer's Experience.

"You seem to enjoy golf."

"I do."

"How long have you played?"

"Fifteen years."

"And have you always enjoyed it so?"

"No. It took me fourteen years to make up my mind that I would never be the amateur champion. After that I could settle down and get some fun out of the game."

Practicing What He Preaches.

Minister's daughter (archly)—Now, Cousin George, you must come to church this evening. Father is preaching from the text, "Love Ye One Another."

Cousin George—Really, Mabel. But can't we stay at home and practice while he preaches?

Engaging a Driver.

"How long will it take us to get to the depot?" asked the man of the taxi driver.

"Fifteen minutes," replied the driver.

"All right. I've got thirty-five minutes to spare. Do you think you can get me to the depot without scaring the daylight out of me?"

HE KNOWS

"Who's minding your business while you're away, Mr. Green?"
"The neighbors, as usual."

Tricky.

"Oh, I can't thread this needle, ma,"
Was little Bessie's cry.
"Just as the thread is going through
The needle winks its eye."

Practical Charity.

"Look at that poor stray cat. I'll get it some meat."

"No, wait! I believe in teaching others to help themselves. I'll throw some crumbs to draw the birds and maybe the cat can catch one."

Urgent Business.

Mrs. Gramercy—I didn't think Mr. Needham could afford to have his family go to a fashionable resort for the winter.

Mrs. Park—It was absolutely necessary. The poor woman has two marriageable daughters on her hands.

Warned Him.

"She married him for better or for worse."

"Well?"

"Immediately after the ceremony she served notice on him that if he ever showed any signs of getting worse there would be nothing doing."

Harsh Words.

"I can't use this stuff," said the editor.

"In no way, shape or form?"

"In no way, shape or form would it be a poem. You couldn't even palm it off on an unsuspecting public as free verse."

Not for Children.

Pal—Did you read about that nonogenarians' banquet?

Palaver—Yes. I heard a fellow eighty-nine years old tried to get in and they told him he was too young to go to such things.

Time.

"The boss offered me an interest in the business today."

"He did?"

"Yes, he said that if I didn't take an interest pretty soon he'd fire me."—Kansas Sour Owl.

STILL KNOCKING HIM

Cholly—Let me think a minute.
Peggy—Can you keep it up that long?

Commanding.

Her beauty is commanding;
Of that there is no doubt
But you should hear it order
Her Pa and Ma about.

He Got His.

Mr. Oldbird—My dear Miss Bright, do you think it would ever be possible for you to love a man as—as old as I am?

Miss Bright—Oh, I might; if he were different from you in every other way.

Second-Hand.

She—Johnnie, I hear that your brother has the measles. When are you going to get them?

Johnnie—When he's through with them, I suppose.—Pitt Panther.

Real Man of the World.

The mark of the man of the world is absence of pretension. He does not make a speech; he takes a low business tone, avoids all brag, is nobody, dresses plainly, promises not at all, performs much, speaks in monosyllables, hugs his fact.—Emerson.

WITH THE FUNNY MEN

ABSOLUTELY HEARTLESS

"What is the title of this picture?" asked the wealthy old codger.

"I call it 'A Soul in Travail,'" replied the impecunious artist, "but if you will buy it you may call it anything you like."

"Ugh! I can do that without buying it. It's a chromo."

A Timely Tip.

Ned (sternly)—You know you oughtn't to have bought a new hat, for we have exhausted our clothing budget.

Nell (triumphantly)—Don't let a little thing like that worry you! I charged it to "overhead expense" and made it come out perfectly even!

What's a Home Nowadays?

"We want to buy a bungalow."

"Yes, sir. I'll take you and the lady out to see one."

"Oh, anything you happen to have on hand will do."

"But, sir—"

"It isn't as if we were buying a car, you know."

Flapper Fairy Tales.

Ludwig—Would you like to have the engagement ring my mother had or shall I go to one of the Fifth avenue stores and get a $500 sparkler for you?

Georgette—Oh, I'd much rather have your mother's; it would be so much more romantic!

Out of Style.

"Mother, I trust you will not weep at my wedding."

"But, my dear daughter, I shall not be able to help it."

"But you must. It is no longer fashionable to shed tears at a wedding."

Continuous Performances.

"Man is born to sorrow," mourned the good deacon.

"Yes, that's right," agreed the unreformed backslider. "About the time our parents leave off spanking us experience begins."

Speaking Right Then.

"My brother," said John J. Meddling, "do you look on life as a blessing or a bore?"

"At the present moment," replied Mr. Grumpson, eyeing his questioner with strong disapproval, "it's 100 per cent boredom."

AN HONEST THIEF

Desk Sergeant—What does the prisoner give as his occupation?
Officer—Says he's a thief.
Desk Sergeant—A thief? Well, he's honest, anyway.

An Epitaph.

Here lies the body of William Jay,
Who died maintaining the right-of-way;
He was dead right as he sped along,
But he's just as dead as if he'd been wrong.

Select.

"These are select apples. Twenty-five and 50 cents a dozen."

"Whaddye mean 'select'?"

"If you select them, they're 50 cents a dozen. If I select them they're 25."—Farm Life.

Helping It Out.

"I believe in the office seeking the man."

"Yes, yes, go on."

"But I also believe in letting the office know that you are willing to be sought."

Mixed.

"Jack, dear, I made you believe I wasn't in earnest when I told you I didn't mean what I said, didn't I?"

"I believe so."

"Well, I'll take it all back."—London Tit-Bits.

In Extremis.

Doctor (at bedside)—I fancy he is about ready for the kingdom of heaven.

Ministering Wife—Will you be quiet . . . and him so good a Republican!—Le Journal Amusant (Paris).

An Optimist.

"Well, he's an optimist, anyhow."

"What's he doing now?"

"Already planning where he'll go fishing when the time for fishing comes."

Unnecessary.

"I never play bridge with my wife."

"Why not?"

"Oh, we've got plenty of other things to wrangle about."

True.

"Pa, does money bring happiness?"

"No, my boy, but mighty few people prefer poverty on that account."

Halo in Religious Art.

The halo employed in religious art typifies celestial light and glory. It was in use long before the Christian era among the Egyptians, Greeks and Romans, and has been employed in Christian art from very early times.—Literary Digest.

ALLS M. E. CHURCH TOO COMMERCIAL

Forman, In Annual Conference ermon, Protests Against "Or- dained Show Managers" and Pleads For Simpler Method of Preaching Gospel—W. H. Ander- son Endorsed and Phillips Ig- nored.

The Methodist Church contains rdained show managers," accord- to the Rev. Dr. Raymond L. rman, pastor of St. Paul's Metho- t Church, West End Avenue and ghty-sixth street. Dr. Forman de this statement at the second 's session of the New York an- al conference at the Park Avenue thodist Church in New York y.

Dr. Forman's discourse was the nual conference sermon. He de- red the Methodist Church had ome commercialized and that he nted all the "business experts" o occupied swivel chairs at roll- desks in Methodist buildings to abolished.

"I venture to hope that after the cle of our centenary movement been completed that we may ose some simpler method of aching the Gospel. Such a step ght tend to curtail the secretaries o even tell us on what day Easter ls, instruct what to preach about different Sundays and remind us be sure and take up a collection. attitude of some of these men o hold 'desk positions' is that istian pastors are parish errand s to run about at their will. With h happenings we cannot help have a degraded pastorate and a raded church."

"It seems to me like a swan song en we close the Bible even one nday and open our pulpit to some guided physcology lady or half- ed Coue disciple who inciden- y after a speech carries away a containing a fat collection."

The conference after a short but ly debate adopted a resolution firming its unshaken faith in the trines of Christianity as taught the Methodist Church, especially deity of Christ, the incarnation, resurrection and the doctrines of ce accepted as the standards of urch Methodism. In an amend- t to this resolution the confer- nce voiced its disapproval of New York Methodist Preachers' eting inviting the Rev. Percy inney Grant to address that body. ong the originators of the reso- on were the Rev. P. C. Weyant, rmer pastor of Trinity Methodist urch of this city; the Rev. Dr. ard E. Bell, formerly superin- ndent of the Kingston District; l the Rev. W. H. Lofthouse, a for- pastor of the South Rondout thodist Church.

In response to an invitation issued dnesday, William H. Anderson, perintendent of the New York te Anti-Saloon League, ad- ssed the conference. He received ovation when he appeared on the tform and another when he was sented by Bishop Richardson.

At the conclusion of Mr. Ander- 's speech the conference adopted thout dissent resolutions endors- him. In his address Mr. Ander- n launched into an attack on the w York Times for printing state- nts of persons who had brought rges against him.

When asked what he was going to about a letter which had been t him by O. B. Phillips, formerly ndal agent of the New York ti-Saloon league, requesting per- ssion to present to the conference ords in his possession concern- the charges against Mr. Ander- n, Bishop Luther B. Wilson, who sided for a time Thursday, re- ed:

"I have not yet received such a ter. When a man writes me but s a copy of it to the public press ore there is time for it to be re- ved by me, I do not regard the mmunication as personal and pay attention to it."

Masquerade Ball a Success.

More than two hundred and fifty people attended the masquerade and dance given at Pythian Hall Thursday night by Clinton Chapter, No. 445, Order of the Eastern Star, for the benefit of the Masonic building fund. Everyone was in masque and the costumes of both men and women covered a wide range of originality of design. Practically every period of American fashion from Colonial days to the present was included in the variety of costumes worn by the women, and almost every nationality was represented by some kind of costume. The decorations of the hall were unique and artistic and displayed great skill and excellent taste.

LeFevre-Wright.

A delightful wedding ceremony completed the Easter service at the Reformed Church in Gardiner Sunday morning April 1, when Gordon J. LeFevre of Cambridge, N. Y., was united in marriage to Miss Luella M. Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Wright of Gardiner. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. H. W. Brink. The bridal couple were attended by Charles C. Wagoner and Miss Mary R. Wright, a sister of the bride. After dinner at the home of the bride, the newly married pair left for a tour, after which they will make their home at Salem, N. Y., where Mr. LeFevre is superintendent of a dairy.

FIRST APRIL SHOWER WILL RAISE STREAMS

The rain Thursday night accompanied by lightning and thunder was the first April shower of the season. The streams in the Catskill mountains, especially on the south side, have been low for several days but there is still considerable snow on that and the north side, and the rain of Wednesday and Thursday, and melting snow will raise the streams and trout fishermen who make it a rule to go fishing as soon as the season opens, which will be on Saturday, are not anticipating much success. The Ashokan reservoir is probably as low as ever before in its history.

917,036 CARS LOADED IN WEEK ENDED MARCH 24

Record-breaking loadings for this time of year of revenue freight continue according to the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association. The loading for the week ended March 24 totaled 917,036 cars. This was an increase of 79,795 cars over the corresponding week last year, and an increase of 230,469 cars over the corresponding week in 1921.

The total for the week also was an increase of 12,750 cars over the preceding week and, with one exception, was the largest for any week so far this year.

Robert Boruneley, a traveling tourist, was arrested late Thursday evening by Officer Harnen on a charge of acting in a suspicious manner. This morning Special City Judge Robert G. Groves gave the tourist half an hour to leave the city. He left.

Mount Marion Services.

The Rev. Mr. Kerr will hold divine worship at Mount Marion Reformed Church next Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Subject of sermon: David's question of Psalms 19 and 12, distorted; why concern ourselves about personal faults and errors that are unknown to us?

DuFlon Moves Office.

Frank DuFlon who has maintained a real estate office at 309 Wall street for some time has moved his office to his residence at 83 Johnston avenue, where he will conduct his business in the future. His phone number has been changed to 1048-W.

HARDING BOUGHT FARM BUT WON'T LIVE THERE.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Augusta, Ga., April 6.—President Harding has bought the old farm in Morrow county, Ohio, where he was born, but he probably will never live on it, it was learned here today.

President Harding read with amusement here stories from Marion, Ohio, to the effect that he was going to retire, become a farmer and spend his life writing his memoirs.

Mr. Harding bought the old family place and intends to restore it for sentimental reasons and not with any definite thought of living on the place, his friends say.

THE JOINERS.

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Organizations.

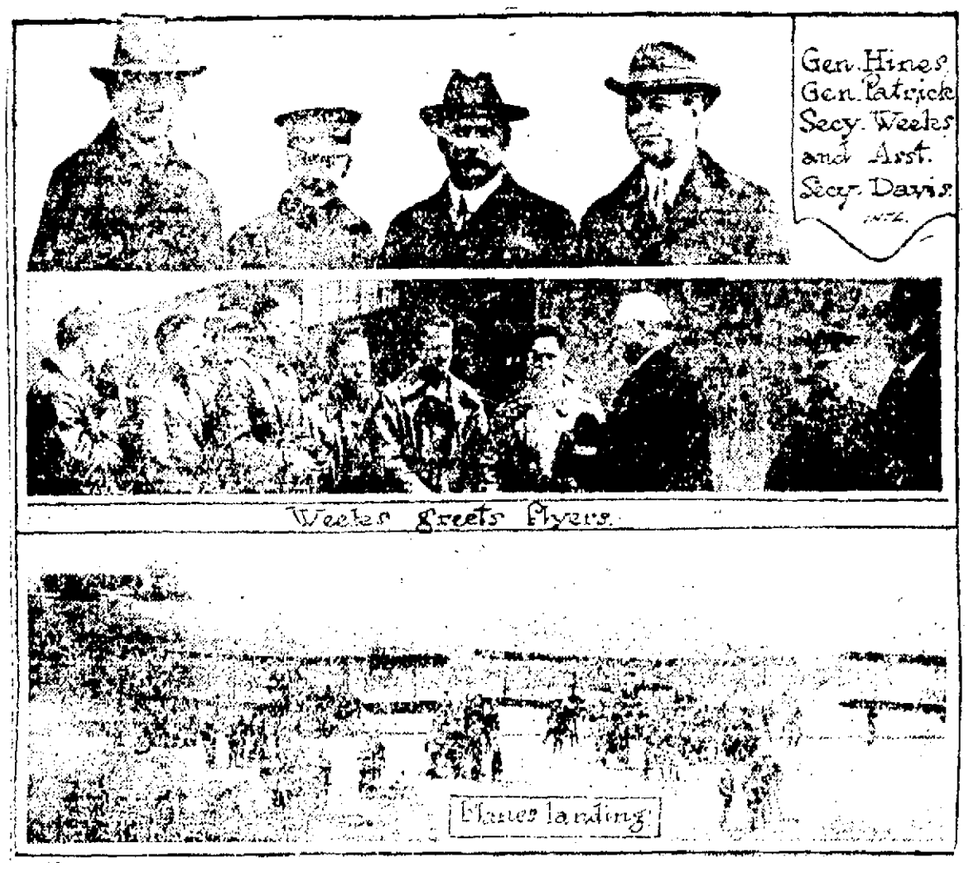
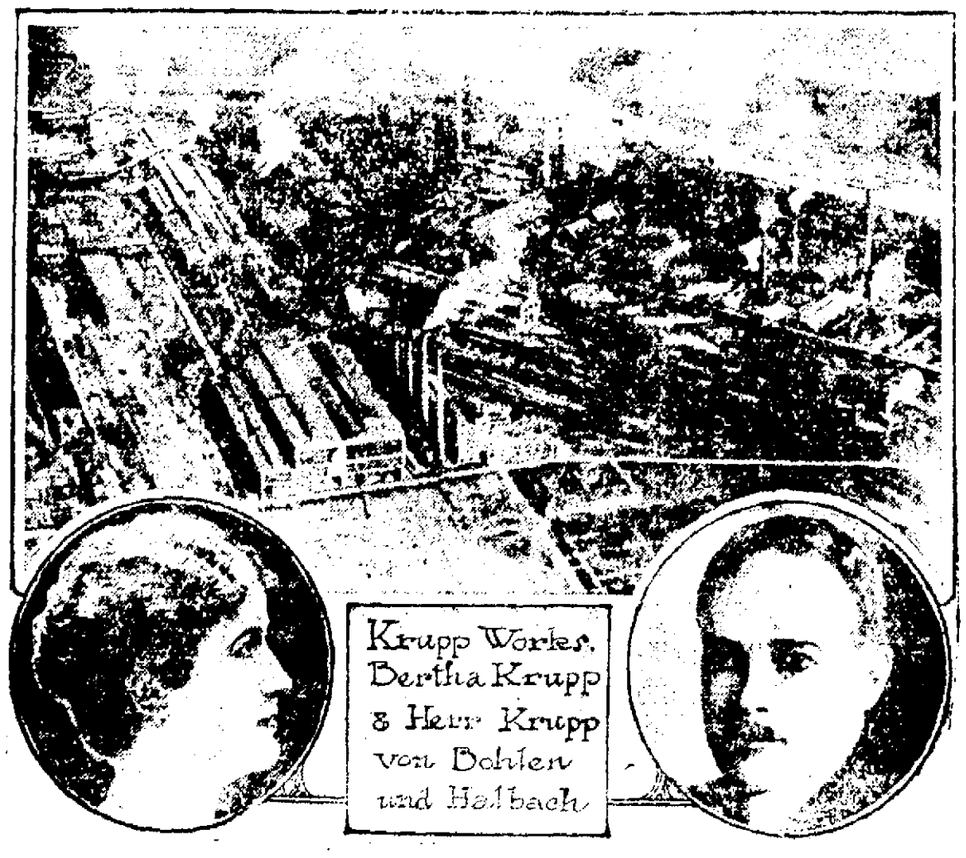
A number of Kingston Masons attended the communication of Catskill Lodge, No. 468, F. & A. M., Wednesday evening, at which time Robert E. Leighton of this city, district deputy grand master of the Ulster-Greene county district, paid his official visit to that lodge. A number of masters and past masters of Masonic lodges of the district were present, including Arthur A. Davis, master of Kingston Lodge, No. 10; Dr. Henry Van Hoevenberg, past master, and John E. Kraft, past master and past district deputy. District Deputy Leighton announced that the grand master of the grand lodge of Masons of the state of New York would visit Kingston Lodge, No. 10, Friday evening, April 27. About forty members of Catskill Lodge accepted an invitation to be present at the communication of Kingston Lodge at that time.

Thought for the Day.

There is never a valley so deep that we cannot see out if we will but look up.



Six army airplanes, carrying 12 officers, under command of Captain Thomas G. Lanphier, shown arriving in Washington, after the completion of a record-breaking 6,000-mile flight, which was made to prepare plans to "bottle up" the Caribbean Sea in the event of an enemy naval attack. The planes travelled on absolute schedule from San Antonio, Texas, to Cuba and Porto Rico, returning to Washington, where they were greeted by Secretary Weeks, Assistant Secretary Dwight Davis, General Mason T. Patrick, Chief of the Army Air Service, and Brigadier-General Hines, Assistant Chief of Staff. The planes covered 5,400 miles in 61 hours, 13 minutes flying time. By reaching Porto Rico on schedule time they showed that within three days the entire American Air Force can be mobilized on that island to bomb and sink any approaching enemy fleet. There was not an accident on the flight.



This airplane view shows the immensity of the Krupp works, at Essen, scene of a bloody encounter between the French and German workers, in which eleven Germans were slain by machine-gun fire. Far bloodier outbreaks are feared, for the Essen Krupp workers assert they have been goaded to desperation by the French. Herr von Bohlen, husband of Bertha Krupp, chief owner of the plant, has been advised to leave the district, but has refused. "My men stuck by me; I shall stick by them!" he said to an interviewer.

KU KLUXERS AT BEACON

That the Ku Klux Klan is a reality in the vicinity of Beacon and Wappingers Falls is asserted most emphatically by "Chick" Andretta, a well known taxi man of Wappingers Falls, who says he saw a real demonstration by a branch of the organization at an early hour Tuesday morning along the state road to Beacon. Two burning crosses and a company of hooded men figured in the demonstration which was seen, Andretta says, not only by himself, but also by six passengers in his car.

Andretta had been hired to take three couples back to their homes in Beacon following a dance at Wappingers Falls on Monday night. He left the village about 2 o'clock in the morning and while going along the state road he says that he saw in a field and at a distance of about 100 feet from the road two burning crosses about which a number of hooded and white robed figures were running. He is uncertain as to just how many were in the party and in fact stepped on the gas rather suddenly without stopping to investigate.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDED GAMES AT LANESVILLE

Two games of basketball were played at Lanesville on Wednesday evening. The preliminary game was between the Tiskilwa Five of Chichester, and the Hunter Juniors. The Tiskilwa team won, score 16 to 10. Strusz was the high scorer of the winners with 11 points, while Boyarsky of Hunter stood next with three field goals. In the second game the Ranger Five defeated the Dauntless quintet of Kingston. The final score was 25 to 19. At one time in the last half the score stood 18 to 17, but in the last few minutes the Lanesville team forged further in the lead. The best crowd of the season saw the contests.

U. C. T. MEMORIAL SERVICE SUNDAY

On Sunday, April 8, at 7:30 p. m., Kingston Council, No. 356, United Commercial Travelers of America, will hold its annual memorial service in the Fair Street Reformed Church. At this service tribute will be paid to the memory of the following brothers who have died: Howard Myer, John G. Weiss, William G. Kingsley, Thomas J. Diamond, W. Scott Haulenbeek, Jacob Harris, Michael D. Rafferty, Tracey Tillson, Henry Stryker, John D. Dowd, Marcellus Low. The members of the council are requested to meet at the Eagle Hotel, at 7:15 o'clock and march in a body to the church. Brother Ed. Morris wil conduct the flower service assisted by Miss Ruth Morris and Miss Janet Schornstheimer, after which the Rev. Frank B. Seeley, pastor of the church will deliver an appropriate address.

BIRD LECTURE AT HIGH SCHOOL APRIL 11

Big plans are now on foot for the annual Audubon lecture, which is to take place at the high school auditorium on Wednesday, April 11, at 8:15.

Edward Avis, the lecturer, has been here several times. Each time his audience of admirers has been augmented by new devotees. He presents several sets of slides of birds, some of which are most magnificently and realistically colored. It has been said of Mr. Avis that never has a human being possessed such a wonderful throat for the imitation of bird calls. Then too, he has a violin which almost speaks. Those who heard him last year will remember his rendition of the "Country Church Organ."

Tickets are unusually low priced and may be obtained from any member of the Audubon Society or at the door on the night of the concert.

Thief Procured Clothes By Using a Fish Pole

Trousers which residents of Hammond, Ind., hang carefully on bedposts at night and coats and vests which drape the backs of chairs have been disappearing with such regularity that police have been called to aid in solving the mystery. Detectives declare the clothing is being stolen by a thief whose only tool is a fish pole. He seeks out the houses with windows open and catches the clothing with a hook.

WANTED TO BE HERO; REALIZES HIS DREAM

Madman, Who Lost Chance for Bravery When Sane, Saved Fellow Maniacs at Fire.

New York.—A maniac who, physicians prefer, should be known simply as John Doe, was an outstanding hero of the fire which killed 25 at the Hospital for Insane on Ward's island, opposite New York city. John Doe always had sought a heroic role. Twice opportunity had presented itself, but he had weakened. That was when he was sane. His third chance came after his mind had snapped. This time he made good, but he is unconscious of the dream finally realized.

"This Way, Men."

John Doe is a man of gigantic build, and a special watch was kept on him at the hospital, for attendants said he was classed as a "homicidal maniac," and was the most dangerous man on the island.

When the United States entered the World war John Doe had his first chance to be a hero. He enlisted and went to the front, but in the trenches the roar of shells and patter of machine gun bullets took the heart out of him. He deserted, and then the desire to be a hero, a killer of men, returned and he joined the German forces, but once more deserted. When the war ended, he returned to America, where his mind snapped and he landed in the hospital.

As the flames cracked around him during the recent catastrophe on the island, and the dense smoke enveloped his gigantic frame, John Doe was seen by attendants leading the weaker to safety. "This way, men; the fire escape is right here," he said quietly. He was the calmest man in the hall of death, but when the flames were quenched, his mind once more became that of a raving maniac instead of a hero, and he will never know that in saving the lives of his fellow-unfortunates he had indeed become a real hero.

BABY IS BROUGHT TO LIFE

One of Twins, Apparently Stillborn, Revived With Adrenalin in New York Hospital.

New York.—Dr. Philip Mininberg of 3771 Twenty-first avenue, Brooklyn, who brought an apparently stillborn twin to life at the maternity hospital, at Forty-fifth street and Fifteenth avenue, on Lincoln's birthday by the use of adrenalin solution, said that both twins were doing so well that it was likely they might be taken out of the incubator in a few days, instead of being left there for the further two weeks which it had been supposed would be necessary. The twins, Daniel and Dorothy, are the children of Morris and Bertha Isaacson of 6424 Third avenue Brooklyn. It was the boy who appeared stillborn.

Beavers Drive Away Deer.

A well-known guide offers a solution as to the reason for the scarcity of deer in places where they have formerly been numerous. A large part of it he attributes to the work of that busy little animal, the beaver. The beaver, he says, builds a dam across a brook that flows through a swamp. This overflows the swamp, kills the evergreens and drives the deer from his winter home.

ATHLETIC ASS'N ENTERTAINMENT

The Athletic Association of Kingston High School is planning an entertainment for the evening of Friday, April 27. The entertainment is to be something entirely different from those that have been given at the school during the past couple years. Frank Guy Armitage is the entertainer. Mr. Armitage is a well known impersonator, whose entertainments in other places have been the cause of considerable comment and many letters of congratulations and recommendation.

The program will be a varied one, containing portrayals of the more prominent characters of famous plays and books, monologues, pianologs, ventriloquism, magic and pot pourri. According to those who have previously heard him, his entertainment is in the full meaning of the word delightful.

The proceeds of this entertainment are to go toward the equipping of the athletic teams of K. H. S., in particular the baseball team of this season and the football team of next fall. Tickets, which are very low in price, may be gotten from members of the A. A.

Mentioned It to Morphens.

From a Story—"To his considerable surprise, Shane, on getting into bed, fell immediately into a deep but restful sleep."

CHAMPIONSHIP GAME TONIGHT

Result of Kingston-Celtic Struggle Here Will Decide World's Championship For This Season—Doors Open At 7 O'Clock.

Frank Morgenweck's galaxy tonight faces the Original Celtics, claimants of the World's Championship, at the local armory court. This contest is one of the best that has ever been staged on a basketball court in Kingston, and from the amount of tickets sold in advance will bring out the largest crowd.

The local representatives have made a remarkable record this past season, winning the championship of the New York Basketball League and breaking even with the wearers of the Shamrock, two all. The event tonight has attracted a great deal of attention not only in local sport circles, but all through the state.

The Celtics will come to this city with the firm intention of downing the local squad. Starting the game Manager Furey will in all probability start in the forward positions, Barry and Johnny Beckman with Haggerty at the pivot position and Holman and Leonard.

Manager Morgenweck's choice beginning the game will undoubtedly be Borgman and Carl Husta in the fronts, Charlie Powers at center and Nick Harvey and George Artus at the guard positions. Tome and M. Husta will also be uniformed and a change may be made at any time during the battle.

The doors open at 7 o'clock, at which time the rush seats will be placed on sale. All those who have secured tickets, that is reserved, the only kind sold, will not have to wait in line or struggle through the main entrance tonight, as the small door on the Hoffman street side of the armory will be opened to admit them.

Fountain Pens Three Centuries Ago.

Fountain pens were used as far back as 1690, and reference to them is found in an advertisement in 1788. They did not come into anything approaching general use until fifty years ago. A patent was granted in 1830 to Joseph Bramah, the inventor, who gave his name to the Bramah lock and hydraulic press.
